Settlement of Differences

SAVINGS REDUCED

More Liberal Treatment of Cases Seen

BULLETIN
WASHINGTON, June 9.—President Roosevelt's compromise plan for modification of the drastic veterans economy act was formally approved today by the special house veterans committee subject to clarifying changes.
The Democratic steering committee was expected to accept the recommendation of the special body named to negotiate a settlement of differences between the president and congress, and attempt to drive the compromise plan through the house tomorrow under special rule.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Settlement of differences between President Roosevelt and the house over demands for modification of the veterans economy act appeared probable today as the Democratic steering committee was called into session to consider the president's final compromise plan.

Although many of the leaders in the house "soldiers' bloc" spurned the White House offer, Democratic leaders were using their influence to end the revolt which has threatened to delay adjournment of congress.

The compromise plan, approved in principle by a group of house veterans leaders and the president, is variously estimated to reduce the savings in the economy act approximately $60,000,000 to $100,000,000.

BE MORE LIBERAL
The compromise, elaborating on the president's order issued two days ago liberalizing many provisions of the economy act, is designed to assure more liberal treatment for Spanish-American war veterans and World War veterans whose illness are "presumed" by law to be connected with the service.

The agreement reached after many conferences retains $50,000 presumptive World War veterans cases on the compensation rolls, but gives the president the right to have each case reviewed. If the government can show beyond a reasonable doubt that the veteran's case was not connected with the service he will be removed.

An appeal is provided for the veteran, and if his appeal is successful he will be given retroactive pay.

Spanish-American war veterans 55 years of age or over would be presumed to be drawing pensions for service-connected ailments under the second phase of the settlement. This is a modification of the president's recent regulation which provided that those 62 and over would retain reduced pensions.

By lowering the age limit, house experts on veterans laws said most of the 190,000 Spanish War veterans would be assured of preferential treatment.

DR. H. G. BARTON DIES IN ADELPHI

Suspected Murderer
of Mother Arrested
On Extortion Charge

BALFE MACDONALD

Flint, Mich., Youth, Caught In Nashville, Denies Murder Claim.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 9.—Balfe MacDonald, 17, sought by Flint, Mich., police in connection with the murder of his wealthy mother, was under arrest here today on a federal charge of sending extortion letters through the mails.

In custody with young MacDonald on the same charge was Leroy Terwilliger, 16, who disappeared with Balfe shortly after the murder. The two youths had left Flint on May 27, the day Mrs. Grace MacDonald, 54, the boy's mother, was found murdered in her home.

The pair were arrested Saturday when Terwilliger was seized delivering a note to a merchant demanding $150. Balfe was found in a cheap rooming house.

When arraigned late yesterday on a federal extortion charge, both youths admitted their identities. MacDonald had previously told police he was from California. He denied killing his mother, Detective Chief Elkin Lewis said.

The youth said he had argued with his mother until a late hour "the night before" and decided to run away. Taking his mother's automobile and $45 from her purse he departed with Terwilliger.

"Mother did not like the way I was doing things," Lewis quoted Balfe as saying. "She criticized everything I did and she wanted to put me in a reformatory."
After questioning Terwilliger, Lewis said he related the story of a "fight" between Balfe and his mother of which young MacDonald had told him.

WETS TO MOVE FOR CONVENTION

COLUMBUS, June 9.—Ohio wets will go to the state supreme court to compel the holding this year of a state convention on repeal of the 18th amendment, Senator Harold G. Mosier (D), of Cleveland, author of the Mosier bill, told International News Service today.

The announcement was made on the heels of the claim by the Ohio Anti-Saloon League that it has obtained sufficient signatures to forestall election of delegates to the convention at the November election.

BANK MESSENGER ROBBED OF $10,000

PEKIN, Ill., June 9.—Two unmasked bandits today held up Emil Fask and Charles Hoffer, messenger and bookkeeper, respectively, of the Herget National bank here and escaped in an automobile with $10,000 in cash and mail believed to contain non-negotiable securities.

One of the bandits, carried a small machine gun and the other an automatic pistol.

Prominent Physician Had Been Seriously Ill for Six Months

FUNERAL IS SUNDAY

Widow and Seven Children
Are Surviving

Dr. Howard G. Barton, aged 69, prominent Adelphi physician and one of the best known men in south central Ohio, died at his home Thursday at 6:30 p. m. of organic heart disease.

He had been ill for six months.

Funeral services will be held Sunday at 2 p. m. at the Methodist Episcopal church in Adelphi with Revs. Price and Dean officiating. Interment will be in Greenlawn cemetery, Adelphi, by the Albaugh Co., this city.

Dr. Barton was a native of Hocking co. being born March 11, 1864, a son of William S. and Ruth Hone Barton. He was married in Logan on Jan. 1, 1885, to Elizabeth Jadin who survives him.

LEAVES 7 CHILDREN

Other survivors are the following children: W. H. Barton, superintendent of schools at Bainbridge; Mrs. Margaret Good of Adelphi; Robert L. Barton, superintendent of schools of Monroe-twp, this county; Mrs. Clara Bookwalter of Hillsville; Mrs. Ruth Minshall, a teacher in the Adelphi schools; John Barton, who will be superintendent at Scioto-twp beginning next fall after serving at Muhlenberg-twp, and Miss Alice Barton, a teacher in the Salt Creek-twp school. Three sisters, Mrs. Anna Porterfield of Spokane, Wash.; Mrs. Elizabeth Lloyd of Columbus, and Mrs. Laura Allen of New Plymouth, O., also survive.

Dr. Barton, besides being a member of the M. E. church at Adelphi, belonged to the Knights of Pythias, Improved Order of Red Men and various Masonic bodies.

His demise removes one of Adelphi's most substantial citizens.

SOLONS AGAIN RESUME WORK

Clocks Covered As Deadline
Passes; May Kill Minimum Wage Bill.

COLUMBUS, June 9.—The legislature embarked today upon the second day of a time-defying spree of bill-passing, threatening simultaneously to kill the minimum wage legislation recommended to Ohio by President Roosevelt.

Adopted in the house yesterday by a vote of 113 to 0, the O'Neil-Pringle bill, embodying the president's suggestions, faced a possible death in the senate, despite widespread clamor for this type of social legislation. The senate rules committee tentatively declined to place the bill on the day's calendar, notwithstanding unanimous recommendation by the judiciary committee that the bill be passed.

With its clocks stopped to help it ignore a resolution calling for all general bills to have been passed by yesterday noon, the assembly launched into another mad rush to adopt numerous minor measures and clear the atmosphere for work on taxation, beginning Monday.

The clocks were stopped at 11:45 a. m. yesterday and work went on.

77 BILLS PASSED

A total of 77 bills were passed in the house and senate yesterday during the race toward the end. These included the Lewis government reorganization bill, passed in the senate; the Burke bill for state control of the milk industry, adopted in the house, and the Haynes bill to set up a retirement system of state employees, passed in the house after having already been approved in the senate.

The Lewis and Burke bills are sent to the opposite houses today with their sponsors hoping they can get final approval before the last gavel falls.

STUDENTS HONORED AT O. S. U.

Three To Graduate At Exercises Monday; Two Gain Makio Honor.

Honors awarded to Circleville and Pickaway-co students at Ohio State university were announced, Friday, for this school year.

Three will receive degrees Monday when annual commencement exercises are held in the stadium. They are Carlisle C. Leist, Pleasant-st, bachelor of laws, John S. Caldwell, S. Court-st, bachelor of science in agriculture, and Mary Elizabeth Rader, Pickaway-twp, bachelor of science in education.

Scholarship honors were gained by Alice Ada May, N. Scioto-st, who was elected to Phi Alpha Theta, honorary history society, and by Dorothy C. Adkins, E. Main-st, elected to Gamma Psi Kappa, graduate women's honorary group.

Photographs of two students appear in the representative senior section of the 1933 yearbook, the Makio. They are Miss Rader who is a member of Alpha Sigma Alpha and Kappa Phi sororities, the Physical Education club, the University chorus and the women's recreation council, and Mr. Caldwell, a member of Alpha Gamma Rho fraternity and who has served as Pickaway-co's member of the committee of 88.

R. C. Kirk, son of Dr. and Mrs. C. C. Kirk, of Orient, Scioto-twp, is the new president of Ohio State university's student medical council. He is a junior in the college of medicine.

Evan J. Phillips, Pinckney-st, and Robert Rooney, E. Union-st, have received recognition for their work with the campus Y. M. C. A. The former is a freshman in the commerce college and the latter a sophomore in the college of education.

STOCK DEALS ARE REVEALED

Lamont Discloses Transfers
Which Reduced His Income Taxes.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—The great banking firm of J. P. Morgan and Co. bowed to the power of the U. S. Senate today when one of its younger partners, Thomas S. Lamont, fully described at the Senate banking inquiry a series of personal stock transactions that reduced his income taxes in 1931.

He followed the instructions of J. P. Morgan in testifying about the deals.

The Senate voted its banking committee to investigate the bankers income taxes yesterday. Lamont told of selling a large block of stocks to his wife on Dec. 30, 1930. He repurchased them in April, 1931.

He said the transactions resulted in a saving of $2,035.86. This included $1,440.29 on his own return and $595.57 in his wife's return.

Lamont declared the bureau of internal revenue had approved the transactions.

Lamont wore a dark gray suit, no vest and dark tie. As he took his seat George Whitney, one of the most active Morgan partners and John W. Davis, Morgan attorney, took seats directly behind him.

Davis cut his arm around the back of Lamont's chair, and Whitney leaned toward the young looking Morgan partner as he began to testify.

BAKER ENTERS COUNCIL RACE; ROBINSON, TOO

Former Councilman to Seek At-Large Position;
Fourth in Race

DEADLINE NEARS

Goeller Again Files for Council Office

Last minute entries into the race for city council were expected today with the deadline for filing set at 6:30 p. m. All petitions must be in the hands of Clerk of the Board of Elections Harry E. Weill at that time.

W. Frank Baker, former Democratic councilman filed his petition for councilman-at-large, Friday morning, making four in the field with three to be elected.

The lineup for councilman-at-large consists of three Democrats, Mr. Baker, Frank A. Marion and Ira Weiler. Weiler is the only one of the three without council experience. Mack Barrett Jr., is the Republican candidate for councilman-at-large meaning that there will be no fight for the three positions at the primary but that there will be in November.

Mr. Baker was defeated two years ago when Mr. Marion was returned to council by the vote of the people.

ROBINSON FILES

Ward W. Robinson, S. Pickaway-st, filed his petition Friday and will oppose Julius H. Helwig for councilman in the second ward. Mr. Helwig defeated Mr. Robinson two years ago for the nomination.

John C. Goeller, president of council, who has been mentioned very freely as a possible candidate for the Democratic nomination for mayor, filed his petition, Friday, but for re-election as council president instead of mayor. He has no opposition for the council position.

As the deadline approached, William E. Cady, S. Scioto-st, was the only Democrat on the ticket for mayor. Mayor E. T. Hedges will have opposition for the Republican nomination, however, provided Frank Davis, former sheriff files his petition.

LEIST, WILL UNOPPOSED

C. O. Leist, first ward councilman and Clark Will, third ward councilman, will go through the primary unopposed. No Republican has been mentioned for first ward councilman at the November election while Mr. Will will have Don J. White, Democrat, opposing him at the election.

Tull M. Barnes and W. M. Reid seek the Democratic nomination for fourth ward councilman.

It is possible for candidates to file on independent tickets after the primary deadline provided they obtain a certain percentage of the total vote at the last municipal election.

Mrs. Roosevelt Denies Report Son To Re-marry

PORT COLUMBUS, June 9.—Denying that her son, Elliott Roosevelt, is to remarry soon "as far as I know," and insisting "Franklin's life is his own," Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt left here by airplane 7:40 a. m. (EST) today for Newark, N. J.

Mrs. Roosevelt arrived in Columbus at 5:43 o'clock this morning after an all-night airplane trip from Fort Worth, Tex. Despite the all-night trip, the first lady appeared refreshed as she stepped from the plane.

Flashing a broad smile of greeting she enjoyed the night ride. After having slept most of the way to Columbus, she was awakened just before the plane landed at Port Columbus.

Confronted here with reports that her son, Elliott Roosevelt, may marry Miss Ruth Googins, socially prominent Fort Worth girl, Mrs. Roosevelt declared:

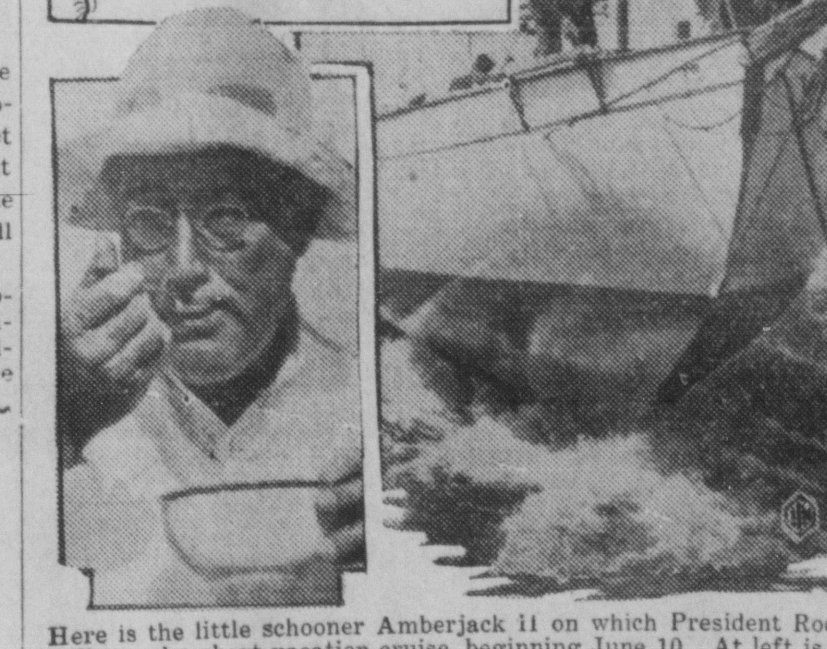

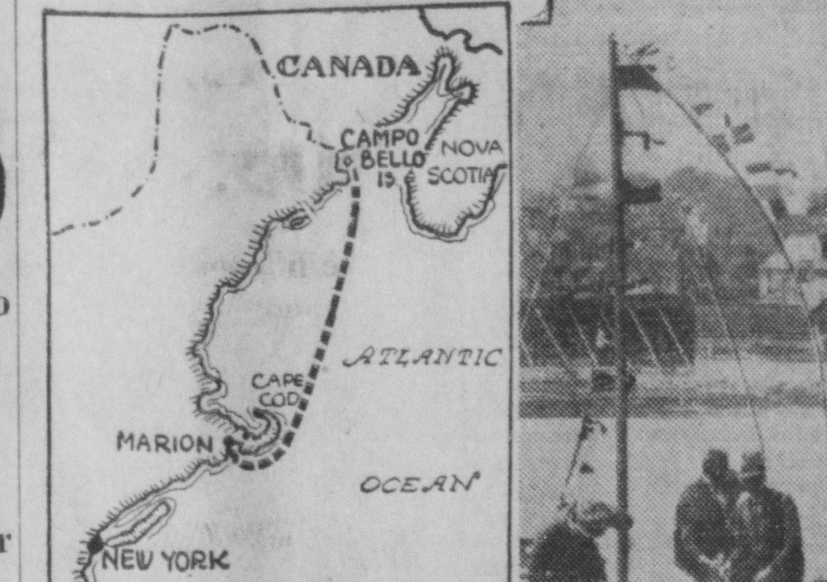

"Elliott is not planning to marry soon as far as I know."

The first lady said her visit with her son had nothing to do with his marital rift.

MANSFIELD, June 9.—

Judge Walter H. Mougey of Wooster, today was assigned to preside over the first degree murder trial which opens here Monday of James Allen, a former inmate of Mansfield reformatory, accused in connection with the slaying of Frank B. Hanger, a reformatory guard.

Ready for President's Cruise

Here is the little schooner Amberjack II on which President Roosevelt will spend a short vacation cruise, beginning June 10. At left is a map of the President's route. After a visit to Dr. William McDonald, an old friend, at Marion, Mass., the President will join the Amberjack and sail, with his boys, up the coast to Campobello Island, N. B.

Senate Leaders Rush Works Bill

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Riding rough-shod over insurgent groups and beating down all major attacks, administration forces in the Senate today waged a spectacular struggle to force final passage of the industrial control and $3,300,000,000 public works bill in time for final adjournment of the special session tomorrow night.

Wary and haggard senators, feeling the effects of a gruelling 13-hour verbal rough-and-tumble over the industrial control provisions, wrangled as to methods of apportioning the $400,000,000 federal highway grant.

The only big fight remaining, however, is centered on how to raise the $220,000,000 annual revenue for public works. Three separate plans were up for consideration. One involved increased income and gasoline taxes, approved by the Senate finance committee; and the third, a general manufacturers' sales tax, which found support both in Republican and Democratic ranks.

HOPES TO ADJOURN
Senator Harrison (D) of Mississippi, chairman of the finance committee, declared, "We will pass the bill tonight and send it to conference. I still believe we can adjourn tomorrow night."

In the dramatic session of yesterday, lasting from 10 a. m. until 11 p. m., repeated assaults upon the bill were crushed by the huge administration majority.

Throwing to the winds a tariff policy of many years standing, the Democrats joined Republican allies to write into the bill a tariff provision even more drastic than that approved by the finance committee.

This provision, offered by Senator Walsh (D) of Massachusetts, would give the President power to impose embargoes and quotas against foreign imports, together with import taxes in the form of licensing charges against American firms receiving foreign shipments. Fifty-nine senators voted for it—11 Democrats joined with Senator Norris (R) of Nebraska to oppose it. A record vote was forced by Senator McNary (R) of Oregon, despite Democratic accusations that he was "playing politics."

Mattern took off from the town of Bielovo, where he had been forced down by a broken fuel pipe, shortly after 9 p. m., Thursday E. D. T.

He reached Krasnoyarsk at 4:30 a. m. G. M. T. (12:30 a. m. E. D. T.), and took off in the direction of Chita at 8:40 a. m. G. M. T. (4:40 a. m. D. D. T.).

The short duration of his stop in Krasnoyarsk indicated that Mattern was unable to obtain the materials needed for thorough repairs.

When he landed at Bielovo, almost unconscious from gasoline fumes and nauseated, Mattern cracked up the tail surface of his plane and was obliged to repair it with sheet iron. He intended to replace the original material and overhaul the entire plane before starting the last stages of his hazardous Siberian flight.

YOUTHS RELEASED

Thursday Temperature
Sets Record for City

Shifting winds brought a measure of relief from the blistering three-day heat wave that shattered all local records, Friday, but above-normal temperatures still prevailed.

The thermometer of Dr. H. R. Clarke, government observer, tipped the 100-degree mark Thursday afternoon for what is thought to be an all-time record for June. The lowest temperature fell during the night and early morning was 75 degrees.

Government meteorologists in the midwest promised only a drop of 12 degrees in temperature today and declared that the mercury will remain far above normal for three more days. Southwest winds which shifted to the west were responsible for the slight relief from the extreme heat.

The torrid wave moved eastward, Thursday, and left 19 persons dead in the Chicago area from heat prostration and heart failure induced by the abnormal temperatures. The official level of the Chicago area was 97 degrees, three degrees below the high of Wednesday.

The heat claimed more than 60 persons throughout the central states it is reported.

Farmers in some parts of the midwest were plowing their corn by moonlight to escape the oppressive rays of the sun.

Temperatures as a whole ranged less throughout the state today, a checkup showed. In Columbus, the mercury was around the 84-degree mark at 10 o'clock this morning. Yesterday, the temperature reached 98 degrees official and 107 degrees street level.

The normal temperature for June 9, according to weather forecasters in Columbus, is 79 degrees. The highest temperature reading for the date is 96 degrees which was established in 1914.

Temperatures in Cleveland, likewise, were down a bit today. At 10 a. m. the mercury was read at 75 degrees. The decline was due to cloudiness. The maximum temperature in Cleveland yesterday was 98.

106 AT DELAWARE

One of the "hottest spots" in Ohio yesterday was Delaware, where the temperature was officially read at 106 degrees. One person collapsed and died there from the heat. He was J. C. McMorrey, an engineer in the Southern Ohio Electric Co. plant.

Four persons died at Cincinnati and many were prostrated by the heat. John Wetterer, 24, and Lester Rolt, 16, drowned when they went swimming in an effort to escape the heat. Nicholas Heitic, 44, died in a hospital after being stricken while at work in the Diamond Match Co. The body of an itinerant, James O'Keefe, was found on a wharf along the Ohio river.

CITY GRANTED $1900 CHECK

Distribution Made From Beer
Permit Receipts; Other Districts Paid.

Miss Lillian Young, city auditor, reported Friday that she had received a check for $1,900 as Circleville's share of money collected from beer permits by the state since April 7.

Cliff M. White, county auditor, has received no word whether or not he will receive any of the money for townships, municipalities and villages. There is possibility the checks will be sent directly to township, municipality and village clerks as Pickaway-co itself will not receive any of the money, it is reported.

Approximately $1,500,000 has been collected by the state since April 7. Columbus and Franklin-co will receive $14,000, this representing money from 12 distributors and two breweries. Returns from retailers in the district have not been completed.

Chuyahoga-co will receive the largest amount, $180,025, representing permits issued to five breweries, 29 distributors and 1,555 retailers.

BAER'S RIGHT HAND DEFEATS SCHMELING; NOW CONTENDER

Referee Mercifully Stops Fight in Tenth Round After Teuton Goes Down for Nine Count; Former Champion Never Has Look-in; Dempsey is 'Made' as Promotor

NEW YORK, June 9.—Max Baer, a swash-buckling thumper from California, stands out today as the top notch challenger for the heavyweight championship of the world—and he owes this distinction to his good right hand.

That right hand whizzed through the air in the tenth round of his battle with Max Schmeling of Germany last night and struck the one-time heavyweight champion on the chin like a bolt of lightning. It was loaded with TNT. It hit with such devastating force that the cagey and courageous Teuton was sent reeling into the ropes, wobbling-legged and glassy-eyed.

It was the bell-ringer of the fight, the forerunner to the knockout which followed dramatically less than a minute later. It wasn't a "smart" punch in the strictly technical sense, but the money rode on it.

PERFECT TARGET

That roundhouse right—it was one of those "telegraphed" swings from Livermore. Schmeling had either ducked or rolled dozens of times. But this time, as it came whirling through the humid atmosphere, the German seemed to stand transfixed, a perfect target beneath the blazing spotlight.

Schmeling's knees buckled as that fatal right ricocketed against his mark and into his staggered against the ropes and it seemed as if he were about to crumple to the floor. But no! With the instinct of a true fighter, the German forced himself erect and gamely met the rush of his foe.

Butless, and with the killer's instinct, Baer pounced upon his victim and shot half a dozen or more pile-driving lefts and rights to the head. Bang, bang, bang, bang, bang, bang—they went in there, a rapid and ferocious succession of bone crushing blows.

And then the German fell. Slowly, as if in slow motion, he sagged to the canvass. The mob, the 60,000 within the arena—roared with excitement as Referee Arthur Donovan stood over the fallen gladiator and began to count. Baer, his chest heaving and smacking his gloves together in a form of nervous agitation, fell back to a crouched corner.

FIRE GONE FROM EYES

Schmeling lay there, motionless for four or five seconds. At the

BIRDS AND SAINTS SPLIT TWO GAMES

Jim Lindsey bested Floyd Newkirk, but to turn the tables Slim Harris outpitched Bud Teachout and the Columbus Red Bird-St. Paul Apostle double-header was split Thursday afternoon.

The Birds took the first game 3-2 but the Saints the second 5-3. Consecutive hits by Shires, Culp and Rothrock won the first game while Hill's double and Todd's single gave the Saints the second game.

The Birds open a series with Milwaukee's Brewers this afternoon at the stadium with Ralph Judd scheduled for mound duty.

count of seven he groped to his knees but the fire of battle seemed to have disappeared from his eyes. He put up his hands feebly as the towering Baer rushed at him like a madman. Once again, Baer snatched him into the ropes. Again the strapping Californian unleashed a flurry of lefts and rights to the head.

Baer, as if in pity, halted in his fury for a brief moment and glanced at the referee. And then, as Baer was about to unlimber a lethal right, which might have had a serious result, Referee Donovan humanely jumped between the men and stopped it.

It was a technical knockout for Baer, officially chalked up as having occurred after one minute and fifty-one seconds of the tenth round of what was to have been a fifteen round bout.

The result was a startling upset for, almost without exception, the boxing experts of the east had picked Schmeling to win, figuring his ring brains, experience and endurance, to say nothing of his vaunted right, would be enough to overcome Baer's sheer punching power.

Baer started off in a sizzling manner, taking the first three rounds. Schmeling held him even in the fourth and then began to come, taking the fifth. Baer, however, took the sixth by a narrow margin. The German won the seventh, the eighth was even and Baer had a shade in the ninth. By this time Baer apparently realized Schmeling couldn't hurt him and he came out in the fatal tenth, swinging like a wild man from the bell.

Financially, as well as artistically, last night's spectacle in Yankee stadium was a success. And, as a consequence, the glamorous Jack Dempsey, who promoted the show, was hailed today as a sort of "Second Tex Rickard." It was regarded as quite a feat for him to lure 60,000 spectators who paid somewhere about $250,000 in the aggregate to see a prize fight in these days of "tight money."

HEAT BLAMED

Schmeling's alibi today was that the heat—the thermometer registered around 90, a near high record—and the blazing lights which beat down upon him, beat him.

But we who saw the fight think different.

It was that right hand of Max Baer's—that right hand that came out of somewhere in Babe Ruth's territory in right field and struck him on the button.

Laughing Around the World

With IRVIN S. COBB

He Could Have Used A Blotter

By IRVIN S. COBB

IT is told—in fact it has been told a great many years—of an Irishman who, passing along the street, saw in the window of a shop a sign reading:

WHITE GOODS.

WE SELL EVERYTHING BY THE YARD.

He faced about and entered the place and, accosting a salesman, said:

"So you sell everything by the yard?"

"We do."

"Very well then, gimme a yard of sweet milk."

"Sweet milk?"

"Shure; that's white goods, ain't it?"

"Maybe you're right," said the clerk, who prided himself on being quick-witted. From a recess on a shelf he lifted down a parcel containing his noonday lunch. He opened the bundle and took out a quart bottle of fresh milk. He opened the bottle, then dipped a forefinger in the contents and drew a long pale streak along the top of the counter.

"There you are," he said triumphantly; "one yard of milk. The price is a quarter."

"And cheap enough," said the customer. "Just roll it up now and I'll take it along with me."

Weather Cuts Crowds at Scout Court of Honor

BY REYNOLD GREENE.

The sweltering heat wave covering Circleville and Pickaway-co, Thursday night, put a decided crimp in the Boy Scout Court of Honor, held in the Memorial Hall.

The Scouts themselves were evidently kept away from the court by the torrid weather as only about 40 of the youths appeared for the ceremony, with Troop 107 making the major portion of that group.

The high school band entertained the few parents and scouts with three selections composed of Meeker Terwilliger, D. D. Dowden, Emmitt L. Crist, C. C. Young, Tom A. Renick, Ferd M. Pickens and George D. McDowell, chairman.

Court members, too, were absent attending to other duties so that only two bona fide members of the court appeared, they being Mr. Renick and Mr. McDowell.

After the invocation by Rev. T. C. Harper, of the United Brethren church, Chairman McDowell introduced the court and presentation of awards was begun with Robert L. Brehmer making presentation of first and second class awards.

Dr. C. J. Rockey of Ashville, making the merit badge awards.

FLAG PRESENTED

Presentation of the district flag by R. L. Brehmer to Troop 107 created excitement among the scouts as the troop has possessed the flag on three other occasions and that Thursday they issued a defy that they would keep it from now on.

An address by Rev. Harper directed to the parents and the scouts on "Trustworthiness" was enthusiastically received.

Mr. Renick then made the higher awards to life and star scouts, and in giving the awards explained the significance of each.

Renick himself, is the possessor of the Eagle Scout award, the highest in scouting. This award was made to the local man in 1916 and was the first award to an Eagle Scout in Ohio at that time. Another youth in some other city was awarded the same honor simultaneously, according to Renick, who wore the medal in Thursday night's court.

Higher awards made by Renick had five youths listed with Chester Pockey of Troop 84, Ashville, being the only Scout present to receive the award of Star Scout.

Edgar Ritchie and Miss Glenna Sheline were united in marriage at noon Saturday, June 3.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. J. Orr at Junction City.

The couple was unattended. After a short visit with the brides parents, Mr. and Mrs. Levi Sheline of Moxahala, Mr. and Mrs. Ritchie motored to Point Pleasant, West Va., and spent the week-end with relatives.

Mrs. Purley Williamson and daughter, Cynthia, returned home Thursday after a fortnight's visit on account of sickness with her parents, Rev. and Mrs. Myers of Belmont. O. Enroute home they called on Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Bowman of Lithopolis.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Potts and Mr. and Mrs. John Potts and Joseph Potts were Sunday callers of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith and family.

Others listed to receive high honors were Raymond Hill, 107, as Life scout; Arthur Goodman, 167, Star scout; Earl Morris and Herbert Dennis of 146, Star scouts.

In the first class scout awards Hildeburn Jones, Jr., 107, was the only scout present to receive the award although many others were listed. Others were: Ted Corcoran, Ernie Stonerock, Conway Stonerock and Robert Carter of Williamsport Troop 43, Joe Smalley of 107, and Dick Mahoney, Carl Leshner and Earl Garner of Troop 158.

Only one second class award was to be made and that was to Eugene Ebert of New Holland Troop 146. He was not present.

MERIT BADGES

Five youths were awarded merit badges although 25 were listed to receive the honors for meritorious work done in the past three months. Those present who received awards were: Chester Rockey, Troop 84, Ashville; Joe Bell, Jr., and Hildeburn Jones of 107; Mark Maxey and Don Bealy of Troop 158.

Other awards to be made were to: Ernie Stonerock, Conway Stonerock, Robert Carter, Everett Tomlinson, Herman Carter and Drexel LeMay of Troop 43, Williamsport; Joe Smalley, Robert Ward and Raymond Hill of Troop 107; Charles Ater, Homer Ater, Galen Hosler, Thomas Kirkpatrick, Earl Morris and Herbert Dennis of New Holland Troop 146; Dick Mahoney, Earl Garner, Carl Leshner, Maurice Ricketts, James Price and Jack Coleman of American Legion Troop 158 and William Towers and Arthur Goodman of Troop 167.

South America's Official War Provides Big Test for League

Paraguay's Declaration of War on Bolivia Opportunity for Geneva Body—of Which Both Nations Are Members—to Justify Its Existence.

SOUTH AMERICA THEATRE OF WAR. PRES DANIEL AYALA of PARAGUAY.

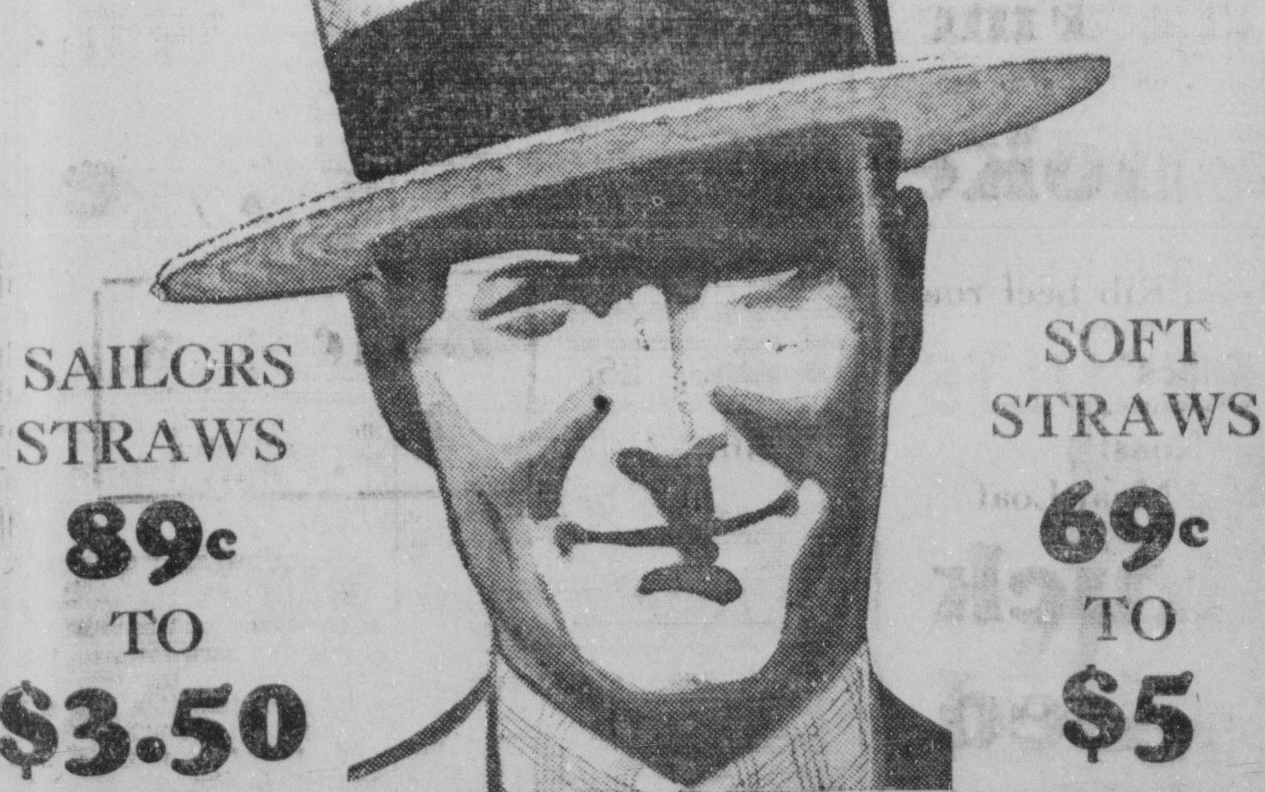

GENERAL HANS KUNDT. PRES EUSEBIO AYALA of PARAGUAY.

When President Eusebio Ayala of Paraguay formally declared war on the neighboring country of Bolivia, he did more than hurl the two countries at each other's throats—he put the League of Nations on trial. Both Paraguay and Bolivia are members of the League, and if that august body cannot control its own members, then it must admit failure to carry out the purpose for which it was created. Although there has been fighting in many parts of the world since the European cataclysm, this is the first official war with which the League has had to deal since its inception. And should the Geneva body fail to bring its refractory members into line, there is little it can offer by way of excuse. The Paraguay-Bolivia trouble has been brewing for years, and there has been fighting for the past eleven months. In those eleven months 40,000 men have been killed while the two countries fought for possession of the 300,000 square miles of wilderness, known as the Gran Chaco. Neither would listen to the peace-making efforts of neutral neighbors, President Ayala asserting that Paraguay was fighting for life, and President Daniel Salananza of Bolivia equally insistent that his country merely was defending itself. Incidentally, Bolivia is vastly superior in manpower and equipment to Paraguay. Too, the Bolivian Army has been trained by General Hans Kundt, German military genius. But again, the Paraguayans are known to be amongst the most stubborn fighters in the world. Back in the 1870's it took three nations, Argentina, Brazil and Uruguay, five years to vanquish her after she had lost over one million men.

vest—and, for the garden crop, the season of canning, drying, pickling, or preserving in some way to provide food for next winter. Housewives, canning clubs, and the community canning centers are already busy in those parts of the country that have an early growing season. Soon the y will be busy everywhere. As a sign of this, every mail brings quidies about food preservation methods to the Bureau of Home Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The bureau is ready to answer these questions. On its staff are specialists in food preservation, and some of its publications have been prepared especially to meet this need. As to canning in particular, there is a pamphlet which gives specific directions for home canning of vegetables and fruits. There is also a circular on community canning centers, describing equipment and making suggestions for the operation of the center.

Most of the household arts had their beginnings in the primitive home. Canning, however, was a nineteenth century discovery, and it originated as a plan for mass production. Napoleon, to provide for his armies, offered a prize for the development of some method of preserving perishable food. A French chef and confectioner, Nicholas Appert, won that prize by the success of his experiments with a process which we now know as canning. He cooked the food, then packed and sealed it airtight, and the food kept for many months. Neither Appert nor anybody else in his day knew why. More than 40 years later the great French scientist Louis Pasteur announced to the world two important discoveries. Micro-organisms present in food, water, and air cause spoilage of food. Heat destroys those micro-organisms, and sterilizes the food. Here was the secret of Appert's success.

Since Appert's time, there have been new developments in the canning process. The old-time way was to cook the food, pack it boiling hot into hot containers, and seal it quickly to shut out air. This is the "open kettle" method and it works with fruit and tomatoes, provided there is no contamination at the moment between packing and sealing the containers. A later method is the "cold-pack," by which the food is packed cold and the filled container is "processed," or sterilized, in a water-bath or pressure canner. The Bureau of Home Economics recommends the "hot-pack" method, however, in preference to either of these. For the hot-pack the food is heated in a minimum quantity of liquid, in order to reduce the bulk and drive out air. Then the containers are packed with the boiling hot food and processed in a water-bath. These methods can be used with the acid foods, such as fruits, to-matos, pickled beets, and ripe pimientos, because the presence of the acid together with the boiling temperature destroys the micro-organisms that cause spoilage.

For nonacid foods, such as meats, corn, beans, peas, asparagus, or baby beets, "processing" in the pressure cooker is recommended by the Bureau of Home Economics. In these foods, which lack the acid found in fruits and tomatoes, such higher temperatures are needed to destroy the micro-organisms of spoilage than are required for acid foods. Only with a pressure canner, says the bureau, can these high temperatures be obtained.

Farmer's Bulletin No. 1471-F, entitled "Canning Fruits and Vegetables at Home," contains specific directions on all these points. It can be had from the Bureau of Home Economics, U. S. Department of Agriculture, or from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C., who has it for sale at 5 cents per copy.

A circular of suggestions for the equipment and operation of community canning centers is available from the bureau free of charge.

Milk for all.

RECIPES

French Toast
1 or 2 eggs.
1-2 to 3-4 cup milk.
Salt.
Butter or other fat.
Bread.

Cut well-baked, even-textured, rather dry bread into uniform slices about 1-4 inch thick. Beat the eggs and add the milk and salt. Dip the slices of bread quickly into the egg mixture, drain, and fry at once in butter or well-seasoned fat. Use moderate heat and let the toast become golden brown before turning.

Savory Vegetable Stew
1 cup diced salt pork.
1 small onion.
2 cups diced carrots.
2 cups diced potato.
1-2 teaspoon salt.
1-2 teaspoon sage.
2 cups hot water.
1-8 teaspoons pepper.

Fry the diced salt pork until crisp. Remove the pork and some of the fat from the skillet and brown the onion and carrot in the remaining fat. Add the potato, salt, sage, and water. Cover and simmer until the vegetables are tender. Remove the cover and cook until the stew has thickened somewhat. Add the crisped salt pork, pepper, and more salt, if needed. Serve on toast.

Oatmeal Drop Cookies
1-2 cup fat.
1 cup sugar.
1 egg.
1-2 cups sifted flour.
1-2 teaspoon salt.
2 teaspoons cinnamon.
2 teaspoons baking powder.
1-2 cup milk.

1-2 cups fine oatmeal.
1 cup seedless raisins.
Cream the fat and sugar, and add the beaten egg. Sift together the dry ingredients, except the oatmeal, and add with the milk to the first mixture. Add the oatmeal and raisins. Mix well. Drop by spoonfuls onto a greased baking sheet and bake to a golden brown in a moderately hot oven (375 deg. to 400 deg. F.) Remove from the pan while hot.

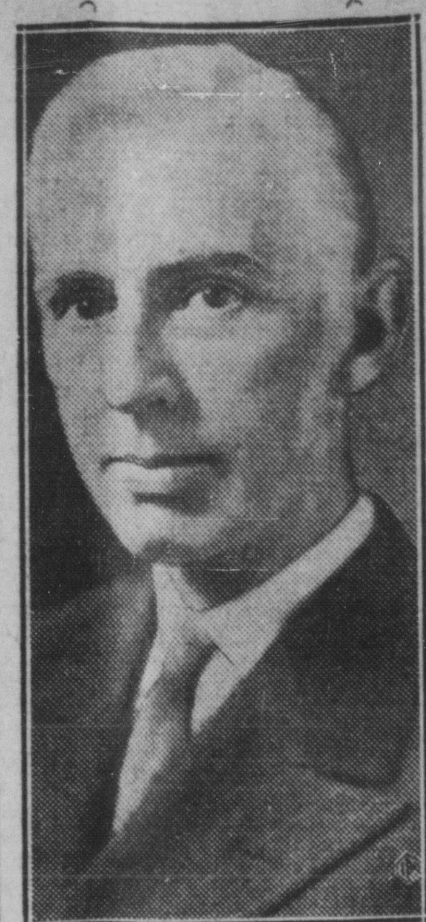

ASHVILLE

The Young People's class of the local U. B. church will be entertained at the home of Mrs. Grover Cline on Scioto-st. Friday evening, June 9.

The Ladies' Aid of the local Lutheran church held its regular monthly meeting in the parlor of the church Wednesday afternoon, June 7.

The canning factory expects to open next Wednesday in full force for canning peas, although the field workers predicts a short crop, owing to the rotting of the roots of the vines, caused by the wet early spring.

FORD V-8 SHOW EXCELLENT MARK

In an economy test run, held recently at Bartlesville, Okla., a new Ford V-8 Tudor Sedan set up the remarkable record of an average of 18.8 miles per gallon of fuel for 10,054.9 miles. The run was sponsored by the Bartlesville Daily Enterprise.

Packed into the run were more miles than the average driver covers in a year's time. The run was made under all kinds of weather conditions including heavy rain and strong winds. Temperatures reached as high as 94 degrees.

Operating at a speed of 50 miles or more per hour over good and bad roads, up and down hills, through rain, fog and mud, it averaged 18.8 miles per gallon, using Phillips sixty-six oil and gasoline for the entire trip. No oil was added between 1000-mile changes and not one cent expended for repairs.

SCOTCH WIN TITLE

The last of the Contests of Nationalities of the Lutheran Brotherhood was held Thursday evening with the Scotch group having the program under the direction of George C. Griffith.

Five of the nine in the group were in the Highland Kilts and Clarence Wolf impersonated a Scotch lassie.

Tom Hickey just couldn't get the right costume for he appeared first as a German, next as an Irish cop, third as a negro and finally in a red dotted Kilt outfit instead of the plaid.

The program was as follows: "Blue Bells of Scotland" by the entire group. "Coming Through the Rye" and five verses made especially for the occasion, sung by Mr. Griffith, Mr. Wolf, Luther Bower, Will Fitzpatrick and Charles Weidinger. Tom Hickey then entered as a German and a short talk on Scotland followed.

An illustrated banner by Mr. Griffith and a song "It's Nice to Get Up" by Mr. Griffith preceded a group impersonation by Charles Weidinger and Howard Griffith. Tom Hickey then turned Irish with several two-minute play-ettes following. They were entitled Mrs. McTwist at the Butcher Shop; The Aeroplane Ride; Two Scotchmen Smoking; Scotchman in Chicago; Scotchman

"SO HAPPY THAT I TRIED ALL-BRAN"

Delicious Cereal Brought Relief From Constipation

If you have headaches, loss of appetite and energy, sleeplessness or any other of the frequent effects of constipation, read Mrs. Schneider's letter:

"Since I have been eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, I don't have to take anything else for constipation. How good it is, and how much better it is for constipation than pills or any other medicine.

"I would never go back to what I used to take, because Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is wholesome and healthful." —Mrs. John Schneider, 950 Tenth Street, Oshkosh, Wisconsin.

Constipation is usually due to lack of "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract. ALL-BRAN has both, as well as iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of lettuce. Within the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, it clears out the wastes.

Try ALL-BRAN in place of pills and drugs—so often habit-forming. Two tablespoonfuls daily will overcome most types of constipation. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Use as a cereal, or in cooking. Recipes on the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

in Church, and then came Tom Hickey as a negro.

"Annie Laurie" was sung by the group and then came a thrift talk by Charles Weidinger. Bag-pipes by George Griffith and then came Hickey in Kilts. "Auld Lang Syne" was the closing song with Carl Palm at the piano.

Emerson Martin and, Heroert Melvin played important parts in the sketches and much credit goes to Carl Leist for tutoring the winners.

The judges, Joe Lynch, Frank Barnhill and Harry Crow rendered their decision in steel helmets and carrying army rifles. The Scotch, determined the winners will be the guests of honor at a banquet and the German, second, will entertain. The Irish and Negroes will be in the kitchen.

Almost 1600 students of vocational agriculture and their teachers registered for the fifth annual convention of Future Farmers of America June 2 and 3, on the campus of the Ohio State University.

THE same directness of approach that has characterized the new administration's method of handling domestic problems will be applied in the proceedings of the world economic conference if the American delegation has its way.

This was indicated by Chairman Hull of the delegation in departing for London. Mr. Hull, reflecting the views of President Roosevelt, indicated that it will be the aim of the Americans to speed the proceedings as much as possible by avoiding irrelevant discussion and handling each problem in the most efficient manner.

This purpose is a highly desirable one. If it can be accomplished, the chances of success will be greatly increased. The task will not be an easy one, however. The large number of nations represented and the complexity of the problems to be considered constitute an obstacle of no small importance.

The conference represents a common effort by the nations of the world to rescue the latter from the economic bog into which it has sunk. To be successful, individual interests must be merged into the common good. The delegates must look at the problems before them from the world standpoint rather than from that of their particular nations. This truth seems to be recognized by the statesmen of most of the participating countries. If they will bend their efforts in the one direction, there seems little doubt that important results will be achieved.

Chairman Hull hopes that the conference can complete its work within six or eight weeks. This doesn't appear to be impossible provided it is prevented from becoming a mere debating body, which has proved to be the fate of many international conferences.

Failure of the conference to accomplish anything of worth while would have disastrous results. Reaction of this should act as a spur to those who will direct the proceedings as well as to the rank and file of delegates.

Boycott Threatened

A CHINESE boycott of Japanese goods was one of the admitted causes of Japan's invasion of China.

Now Japanese spinners are threatening a boycott of Indian cotton in retaliation for the action of the British government in canceling the Indo-Japanese trade agreement as preliminary to increasing tariffs on Japanese cloth.

The Tokyo government has given no indorsement to the proposal. The foreign office says if the spinners carry out their threat it will be without the government's consent. But will the government take any steps to prevent it? Apparently not.

The Chinese boycotted Japanese goods because they believed Japan was pursuing an unjust policy toward their country. The Japanese spinners are threatening action against Indian cotton because they think the British government has acted unjustly.

Should the boycott threat be carried out, would Japan consider Great Britain justified in sending an army into Japan and seizing part of the latter? Hardly. Yet, the British would be doing what the Japanese are doing in China.

Old Cars a Peril

THERE is little surprise in the finding of the Travelers Insurance company that the number of automobiles with defective brakes, tires, lights or steering mechanism in fatal accidents increased 40 per cent during the first four months of the present year.

The insurance company based its conclusion on an examination of automobile fatality figures covering this period.

The situation, of course, reflects one of many phases of the depression. Persons unable to buy new cars have continued to operate their old ones and without having needed repairs made. The insurance company's figures showed an increase of 29 per cent in the number of cars with defective brakes involved in accidents causing one or more deaths, 33 per cent in the number of those having wornout tires, 60 per cent in the number with defective lights and 25 per cent in those whose steering mechanism was faulty.

There are signs that replacement of old cars is beginning to be made, but it will be a good while before the process is completed.

The Housewife's Question Box

Question—What causes peaches and pears at the top of a jar to turn dark?

Answer—This is due to the fact that the jar has stood for a long time, but it is usually due to underprocessing. There is an enzyme activity which causes the fruit to turn dark and unless the fruit is sufficiently heated this enzyme, the discoloration will take place.

Either the processing period was not long enough to exhaust the air sufficiently or the temperature of the fruit was not high enough to render the enzyme inactive. The remedy for this is to increase the processing period from 5 to 10 minutes.

THE CHALLENGE OF LOVE

by WARWICK DEEPING

CHAPTER FIFTY-TWO

John Wolfe's coming was the coming of the general in command. Hospital and commissariat staffs stared more than seemed absolutely necessary. Jess was under fire, and was unconscious of the fact, her eyes looking towards Ursula Brandon, who was waiting for them by the terrace steps.

"I could not keep away, Mrs. Brandon; I heard you wanted help."

Ursula smiled at Jess, studying her as she smiled. It was the attitude of the woman towards the girl.

"That is the spirit we want. Will you go over and help the others to cut out sheets?"

"I'll do anything you ask me to."

"That's splendid."

Jess found herself kneeling under one of the cedars, and snipping away at a bale of calico with a pair of bright new scissors. But her eyes wandered away towards John Wolfe. He was standing talking to Ursula Brandon where the steps led up from the lawn to the terrace. The massed colours of the well-watered flowers in the borders raised a broad background of rose and of gold. Beyond stood the warm, red-walled house, mellow, stately, suggesting aloofness and some awe to Jess's eyes.

They were talking like intimate friends—those two, Ursula Brandon showed animation, fire, reflecting the glow of the man's virility. Jess had a sudden, queer, lost feeling at the heart. She sat back on her heels, watching, forgetting her scissors and the roll of white stuff before her. She discovered the desire that John Wolfe should leave Mrs. Ursula Brandon and come and talk to her, even if only for a moment.

Presently he came, Jess knelt there at his feet, not looking up, her dark lashes making shadows on her cheeks, her scissors busy.

"When are we to go to the hospital, John?"

"The hospital isn't in being yet."

"Has she done all this?"

"Mrs. Brandon? Yes, I never came across anyone with a better head for organization. She has thought of everything down to feeding-cups and safety pins. I must say I was astonished. To look at her you would not think such a woman would trouble."

Jess's head remained bowed.

A cynic could have amused himself by walking about Navestock and watching the remarkable unanimity with which the people of the upper middle-class decided that they needed a change of air. The "White Hart" coach and all the wagons in the town were kept busy, carrying the fugitives to Waddington station. The Wilks family was one of the first to leave, the young ladies pressing scented handkerchiefs to their noses, and old Wilks, the squirrel, nibbling at the daily paper. Miss Perfection was borne off, scattering "heart attacks" like handbills along the road. The Turrells went to Scotland. Johnson, the wine merchant, departed for Yarmouth, taking his daughters and his parrot with him, the bird perched in its cage on the top of the cab, shouting "Monte, Monte!"

Ursula Brandon's windows. Many of the wealthier tradespeople discovered that it was the psychological moment for a holiday. Business languished, and was left to take care of itself.

Threadgold's assistant deserted

tive brakes involved in accidents causing one or more deaths, 33 per cent in the number of those having wornout tires, 60 per cent in the number with defective lights and 25 per cent in those whose steering mechanism was faulty.

There are signs that replacement of old cars is beginning to be made, but it will be a good while before the process is completed.

him early in August, Mr. Talbot Tweedy being a hireling with "nerves." He smiled for a while on people with his yellow teeth, stumbled over doormats, readjusted his pince-nez that were always slipping, and then vanished out of Navestock. Threadgold had begun to be bewildered. His bewilderment increased as the work thickened, but he continued to go bowling about in his carriage and popping in and out of doors. A man's intellect may fail him, but his manner may survive. Threadgold's manner was the product of years of affable composure. It took command of him in the crisis, carried him about, spoke for him, kept him moving. Threadgold was dazed, but his manner went on working, and persisted in uttering the same pompous platitudes.

The people in the river alleys were brutally ignorant and ignorantly stubborn. The stultifying stupidity of the town threatened Wolfe's hospital scheme from the very first. The marquee and tents were pitched, the little improvised beds ready, the volunteers at their posts. The difficulty lay in getting the sick children. Stupid affection, sheer obstinacy, ignorant prejudice made many of the cottagers refuse to let the youngsters be taken away.

"You be wanting to cut 'em about, I know ye."

That was what one poor woman threw in John Wolfe's face.

Compassion made him patient. He and Robert Flemming went from house to house, arguing, pleading, scolding. Wolfe began to grow fierce with some of the fools. Many of them would not let the children go, and would not keep them properly when they kept them. With the co-operation of some of the farmers, Wolfe had arranged to have fresh country milk distributed for the use of the sick. It was imperative that those who were ill should have no solid food. And again and again Wolfe caught them feeding the youngsters on such stuff as bacon and stewed cabbage.

Ursula Brandon was watching Jess tending a sick little boy in the marquee hospital.

"I think she is about the best nurse I have," Ursula told Dr. Wolfe.

"Plenty of pluck, I suppose she eats and sleeps properly?"

"Yes, I see to that; I am very imperious."

"We should never have been able to manage this without you."

Wolfe saw Jess alone for a few minutes before he left.

"All right, Jess?"

"Yes, quite."

"Absolutely sure?"

"Shall I put my tongue out, John?"

He flipped her cheek.

"Be careful."

"Oh, I am very careful. It is just splendid here, and I get on so well with the children. Aren't those people in Navestock wretches?"

"Who?"

"The ignorant wretches who won't let their sick children be brought out here. I should like to go through Navestock with a whip."

Perhaps nothing shocked Navestock more than the deaths of old Hubbard, and Johnson, the butcher. For years these men had been part of the intimate life of the town; old Hubbard, with his round, lard-coloured, mildly owl-wise face; Johnson, the beef-red bully, smacking his great hands together and bellowing with laughter. Their deaths were like the taking down of famous tavern signs. Hubbard died in his sleep; Johnson in the full wakefulness of blasphemous terror. Robert Flemming had looked grey and tired when he had come away from Johnson's bedside.

"That chap Wolfe will be pleased, damn him. I don't care. I've led a straight life, and I ain't been stingy. What have I got to die for, what have I got to die for? I don't want to go!"

Then whimpering, curses against Threadgold—"old mutton head"—"blasted, bodgering fool!"

Then, too, these slow-thinking and patient people began to realize that this pest might not have struck Navestock so fiercely, had the landlords chosen to do what the doctors had advised. Money, yes! It would have cost a deal of money! The talk in the ale-houses and at the doorways became cynical and bitter.

September brought rain. Dr. Wolfe riding back over Tarring Moor with a storm racing up, saw Ursula Brandon's hospital white as newly-washed linen spread out on a bank to dry. The sunlight shone on it, but even as Wolfe watched, the edge of a storm cloud covered the sun. A great hand might have flung a dark net over Navestock. The glamour went. A wind came over the moor. Rain began to fall.

The drops were rattling on the flapping canvas of the marquees and tents before Wolfe reached the hospital. Most of the children were asleep. In the big marquee two nurses were talking together in whispers.

"How are things getting on?"

"Very well in here, doctor. Miss Mascall is with Jennie Sanders in No. 3 tent."

"I don't think she is quite herself, doctor."

"Oh!"

"Of course she pretends. But three days ago—"

Wolfe went striding round the tent pegs with a word of thanks to the nurses. In No. 3 Jess was bending over a bed and settling an ice-bag against the shaven head of a child of seven. There was a listlessness about her movements, an apathy that could not be concealed.

Wolfe came to the doorway in time to see Jess step back from the bed with a little tragic gesture.

"Oh, bother my head."

Then she turned and saw him. A kind of guilty flush over her face, for there was something in John Wolfe's eyes that frightened her.

"Why, John! Do come and look; I think Jennie is going to pull through."

He came into the tent, studying her with the searching glance of a man who was afraid to see that for which he looked.

"You're not well, Jess."

The sparkle had gone out of her.

"It is only a headache. I don't mind so long as the child pulls through. Come and look at her, John."

Wolfe ignored the child on the bed. He went to Jess, and stood over her, intent almost to fierceness.

"Give me your hand. You have felt like this for some days?"

"Yes, John."

"Why didn't you tell me?"

"I didn't want to bother. Besides—"

"Jess, that wasn't fair, dear. Your hand is hot; you're feverish."

The Kings Bishops Pawn Opening

By IRVIN S. COBB

THE late Bert Green, who will be remembered by vaudeville audiences as a gifted pianist and composer, told me this one a few months before his untimely death. He said it really happened.

Two very small boys ran away from their homes one day in the town where Green used to spend his summers. The grandfather of one of the trunks was a distinguished clergyman, of the Episcopal church. Toward evening the little runaways found themselves lost in a dense woodland several miles from home. The dusk was closing in. They were tired and footsore and homesick and they were beginning to get frightened.

"I spect we'd better pray" said one of the pair, preparing to kneel. "No," said his companion, "let me do the praying."

He sank on his knees, clasped his hands and raised his tear-stained face aloft.

"Oh, Lord," he began, "you must know me. I'm Bishop Rogers rraidsen."

Benefits of Sun Many; There Are Dangers, Too

Prolonged Exposure May Result in a Serious Burn, so Take Your First Rays Gradually and in Moderate Doses

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health,
New York City

EVEN THOUGH some appear to forget it, most of us know that prolonged exposure to the rays of the sun is dangerous. I recently visited a friend who was recuperating from a severe sunburn.

In the course of conversation he told me that he had fallen asleep while taking a sun bath. When he awakened he could hardly move. His body seemed to be on fire and he suffered marked agony. He was rushed to a hospital where he received the necessary treatment for the severe burn that he had inflicted upon himself. My friend was dangerously ill for weeks and at one time little hope was held for his recovery.

Gradual Exposure

Of course, this is an extreme case, but the rays of the sun are strong and penetrating. The skin is easily burned by excessive exposure. The burn is similar to that received from fire or scalding liquids. Extensive skin burns from any cause are dangerous and may result in serious complications. Extensive burns covering a wide area of skin may be fatal.

Everyone enjoys a good sun-bath. It gives a healthy appearance and a feeling of well being. It can only be safely acquired by gradual exposure to the sun.

Redness and tenderness of the skin are nature's signs of warning. Bear in mind that exposure to the sun must be gradual and not increased to such a point that the skin has a protective coat of tan. Once the skin has this protection you may safely stay out in the sun for long periods.

Curative Value of Sun's Rays

Though the value of sunlight as a means of combating disease has been known for many centuries, it is only within recent years that its really curative effect has been appreciated. The rays of the sun supply the body with certain substances essential to good health and nutrition. They are of special value in the prevention of certain childhood diseases.

The rays prevent certain vitamin-deficiency diseases, such as rickets. The child who has an abundance of sunshine will never have rickets. This disease was formerly a common ailment of children who received little sunshine and fresh air.

Sun baths are now given to the infant when it is but three or four weeks old. During the winter months when sunlight is scarce, or when weather prevents out-of-doors sunbaths, cod liver oil should be given. This supplies the necessary vitamins developed by the rays of the sun and necessary for sturdy bones and healthy bodies.

The value of sunshine cannot be overestimated. But the dangers of careless exposure to the sun must not be disregarded. Get your share of sunlight but do so carefully and in moderation. Never expose yourself to the sun rays for a long time until you have that protective coat of tan. And above all, do not fall asleep in the sun, as my friend did.

AT THE GRAND

Those who are tired of the stark realism of life, the Depression—aren't we all?—will find a welcome relief in seeing "The Cohens and Kellys in Trouble," the Universal laugh riot co-starring George Sidney and Charles Murray, which opened last night at the Grand Theatre. And anyone who has a sense of humor will find laughter galore in the sea-going comedy, the seventh of the "Cohens and Kellys" series.

Sidney and Murray have a splendid supporting cast, which adds much to the production which may be called, without exaggeration, the best of the Sidney-Murray series.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Lionel Barrymore and an exceptional supporting cast will be seen starting Friday on the days a week during the summer term.

A change in the length of the short term and the addition of a three-week post summer session will be offered this year for the first time, according to an announcement by the University administration. The addition of the short term will enable students to complete a year's training in three summer terms instead of four. The regular summer term will be limited to eight weeks instead of nine.

The summer term will end this year on August 4, permitting teachers and students to enjoy a month's vacation before the resumption of fall activities. All of the facilities of the University will be offered for the short term and a large part of the faculty will be retained. Work during the three-week period will be done largely on a conference basis, though several classes will be given if demand is large enough.

B.&P. Women's Song Recital Dinner Honors at M.E. Church Girl Graduates Huge Success

The annual dinner given in honor of the girl graduates of Circleville High School by the Business and Professional Women's Club was held Thursday evening in the social rooms of the Presbyterian church. Serving of the dinner by the Ladies' Aid society was under the direction of its president, Mrs. A. J. Lyle.

The candle lighted tables and the attractive favors carried out the class colors of blue and silver. Surrounding the tables were baskets of beautifully arranged flowers. At intervals during the dinner and program the guests were delightfully entertained by musical selections consisting of two vocal solos by Miss Johnda Tootle, accompanied by Miss Mildred Rummel; a piano solo by Miss Emily Zaenglein and two violin solos by Miss Vera Zaenglein with accompaniment by her sister, Emily.

Following the dinner the president, Miss Elma Rains, welcomed the guests and graduates, to which Miss Rosemary Jackson responded very graciously.

The guest speaker of the evening, Edyth Dobbins, of Cincinnati, was then introduced by the president. She spoke to the graduates in a delightful manner, stressing the fact that faith, truth and determination are the outstanding qualities to be developed in order to succeed in the business world. Mrs. Dobbins is serving her second year as president of the Cincinnati Business and Professional Women's Club, and is manager of a florist's business as well as a sandblasting business there.

Another guest was Miss Gertrude Gamper of Columbus, state chairman of the Florence Allen Scholarship fund, who spoke briefly.

An appropriate ending to the evening's entertainment was the poem composed by Miss Velma Watson, which she read.

IF I HAD MY WISH
If I had my wish, I should give to you
A life that is lovely, pure and true;
I should fervently ask the Father on high
To protect you from care as the years speed by—
To carve for you a great career
From living marble without Time's fear—
To send you earth's sunshine without the rain
To grant you love's joy without love's pain.

But since this wish, I know, could never come true,
I am making another wish for you:
May you graciously strive to be humble and kind—
To seek your duty with unbiased mind—
May you see the humor in life's little tricks,
Be sane and wholesome amid Fortune's pricks;
May your vision, from power created above
Supply to your work, to your home and friends—love!

Preferred in Paris

Chosen as the "most beautiful blonde in Paris," Miss Jacqueline Doret, 18-year-old stenographer, is shown as she arrived in New York on the trip she won as a prize. She will go to Hollywood for a screen test with a major studio with a view to a film contract.

MRS. CRIST IS CLUB HOSTESS

Miss Carrie Johnson, Mrs. T. P. Brown and Mrs. S. G. Corne were guests of Mrs. J. Wallace Crist, N. Court-st., Thursday evening, when she entertained the members of her bridge club.

Three tables of cards were in progress with high score prize at the conclusion of play awarded Mrs. Hervey Sweyer.

MRS. MARION ENTERTAINS

Mrs. George Marion was hostess, Thursday afternoon, when she pleasantly entertained the members of the Art sewing club and Mrs. Alonzo Marion.

At the conclusion of the enjoyable hours tempting refreshments were served.

The next club meeting will be a picnic, the second Wednesday in August.

LADIES' SOCIETY MEETS THURSDAY

Forty members and guests were present at the monthly meeting of the Ladies' Aid society of Christ Lutheran church at Lick Run, held Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Webb Steinhauer.

The meeting opened with devotional services in charge of Rev. G. L. Troutman followed by the missionary paper on Mexican Missions read by Miss Mabel Kerns.

The program was presented by members of the Ladies' society of the local Lutheran church, with Mrs. James Carpenter in charge.

A duet, "No Sir," was sung by Mrs. William Reid and Mrs. Ed Sensenbrenner followed by two quartet selections, "Lorelei" and "Steal Away." The quartet was comprised of Mrs. Elmer Wolf, Mrs. Frank Palm, Miss Mildred Barthelmas and Mrs. Carpenter.

Anna Marie Fellmuth gave two readings, "Encouragement" and "Mamma's Pickaninny," which were followed by a piano solo, "Twinkle Twinkle Little Star" by Mrs. William Reid.

A play, "The Suffragette Meeting" concluded the program. It was presented by Mrs. Charles Deihman, Mrs. Elmer Wolf, Mrs. Frank Palm, Mrs. Cyril Palm, Mrs. Mary Bower, Mrs. Clarence Wolf and Mrs. Carpenter. Delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Steinhauer and Mrs. Ed Hulse.

GILL-YOAKUM MARRIAGE OF JUNE 7 ANNOUNCED

Guests were Mrs. Earl Rader and daughter, Letitia, Mrs. Oral Rader and daughter, Mary, Mrs. Curtis Burkhead, Mrs. Eugene Neff, Miss Florence Hoffman, Mrs. Erma Gehres and Mrs. Elizabeth Dresbach.

A pleasant afternoon was spent in sewing and was concluded when delicious refreshments were served by the hostess.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. G. M. Newton, Washington-twp.

CHILDREN'S DAY SERVICES SUNDAY

Among the many churches having Children's Day services Sunday are the Methodist Episcopal church, this city, St. Paul Evangelical church, Washington-twp. and Emmitt's chapel.

The M. E. services will start at 9:30 a. m. and will be in charge of Mrs. C. H. Eichinger. All children taking part are to report at the church for practice, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Services at the St. Paul Evangelical church will be held at eight o'clock Sunday evening. A feature of the program will be a pageant, "From the Ends of the Earth."

Mrs. Cliff Miller is in charge of the services at Emmitt's chapel to be held Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. Everybody is cordially invited.

GARDEN CLUB HAS MONTHLY SESSION

The Pickaway-co Garden club met in the Monday club rooms for its monthly meeting, Thursday night. Following a brief business session, Mrs. Carl Ritz told of the enjoyable trip that she, Mrs. Orion King and Mrs. James Moffitt had taken to the Spencer gardens and the garden of Mrs. William Hamilton in Columbus.

A paper on Iris was read by Mrs. James Moffitt after which Mrs. King described the recent garden club trip to Rock Run.

An interesting talk on trees by William Reid concluded the program.

The club meetings during the summer months will begin at eight o'clock instead of the usual time.

Trial Balances

A trial balance is the testing of a ledger to discover whether the debits and credits balance by finding whether the sum of the personal credits increased by the difference between the debit and credit sums in the merchandise and impersonal accounts equals the sum of personal debits. The equality would not show that the items were all correctly posted.

VETERANS' ECONOMY PLAN COMPROMISED

Settlement of Differences Made in House After Confab

SAVINGS REDUCED

More Liberal Treatment of Cases Seen

BULLETIN
WASHINGTON, June 9.—President Roosevelt's compromise plan for modification of the drastic veterans economy act was formally approved today by the special house veterans committee subject to clarifying changes.

The Democratic steering committee was expected to accept the recommendation of the special body named to negotiate a settlement of differences between the president and congress, and attempt to drive the compromise plan through the house tomorrow under special rule.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Settlement of differences between President Roosevelt and the house over demands for modification of the veterans economy act appeared probable today as the Democratic steering committee was called into session to consider the president's final compromise plan.

Although many of the leaders in the house "soldiers' bloc" spurned the White House offer, Democratic leaders were using their influence to end the revolt which has threatened to delay adjournment of congress.

The compromise plan, approved in principle by a group of house veterans leaders and the president, is variously estimated to reduce the savings in the economy act approximately $60,000,000 to $100,000,000.

BE MORE LIBERAL
The compromise, elaborating on the president's order issued two days ago liberalizing many provisions of the economy act, is designed to assure more liberal treatment for Spanish-American war veterans and World War veterans whose illness are "presumed" by law to be connected with the service.

The agreement reached after many conferences retains 150,000 presumptive World War veterans' cases on the compensation rolls, but gives the president the right to have each case reviewed. If the government can show beyond a reasonable doubt that the veteran's case was not connected with the service he will be removed.

An appeal is provided for the veteran, and if his appeal is successful he will be given retroactive pay.

Spanish-American war veterans 55 years of age or over would be presumed to be drawing pensions for service-connected ailments under the second phase of the settlement. This is a modification of the president's recent regulation which provided that those 62 and over would retain reduced pensions.

By lowering the age limit, house experts on veterans laws said, most of the 190,000 Spanish War veterans would be assured of preferential treatment.

DR. H. G. BARTON DIES IN ADELPHI

Suspected Murderer of Mother Arrested On Extortion Charge

BALFE MACDONALD

Flint, Mich., Youth, Caught In Nashville, Denies Murder Claim.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 9.—Balfe MacDonald, 17, sought by Flint, Mich., police in connection with the murder of his wealthy mother, was under arrest here today on a federal charge of sending extortion letters through the mails.

In custody with young MacDonald on the same charge was Leroy Terwilliger, 16, who disappeared with Balfe shortly after the murder. The two youths had left Flint on May 27, the day Mrs. Grace MacDonald, 54, the boy's mother, was found murdered in her home.

The pair were arrested Saturday when Terwilliger was seized delivering a note to a merchant demanding $150. Balfe was found in a cheap rooming house.

When arraigned last yesterday on a federal extortion charge, both youths admitted their identities. MacDonald had previously told police he was from California. He denied killing his mother, Detective Chief Elkin Lewis said.

The youth said he had argued with his mother until a late hour "the night before" and decided to run away. Taking his mother's automobile and $45 from her purse he departed with Terwilliger.

"Mother did not like the way I was doing things," Lewis quoted Balfe as saying. "She criticized everything I did and she wanted to put me in a reformatory."

After questioning, Terwilliger, Lewis said he related the story of "fight" between Balfe and his mother of which young MacDonald had told him.

WETS TO MOVE FOR CONVENTION

COLUMBUS, June 9.—Ohio wets will go to the state supreme court to compel the holding this year of a state convention on repeal of the 18th amendment, Senator Harold G. Mosier (D.), of Cleveland, author of the Mosier bill, told International News Service today.

The announcement was made on the heels of the claim by the Ohio Anti-Saloon League that it has obtained sufficient signatures to forestall election of delegates to the convention at the November election.

BANK MESSENGER ROBBED OF $10,000

PEKIN, Ill., June 9.—Two unmasked bandits today held up Emil Fask and Charles Hoffer, messenger and bookkeeper, respectively, of the Herget National bank here and escaped in an automobile with $10,000 in cash and mail believed to contain non-negotiable securities.

One of the bandits, carried a small machine gun and the other an automatic pistol.

Prominent Physician Had Been Seriously Ill for Six Months

FUNERAL IS SUNDAY

Widow and Seven Children Are Surviving

Dr. Howard G. Barton, aged 69, prominent Adelphi physician and one of the best known men in south central Ohio, died at his home Thursday at 6:30 p. m. of organic heart disease.

He had been ill for six months. Funeral services will be held Sunday at 2 p. m. at the Methodist Episcopal church in Adelphi with Revs. Price and Dean officiating. Interment will be in Greenlawn cemetery, Adelphi, by the Albaugh Co., this city.

Dr. Barton was a native of Hocking co. being born March 11, 1864, a son of William S. and Ruth Hone Barton. He was married in Logan on Jan. 1, 1885, to Elizabeth Jadin who survives him.

LEAVES 7 CHILDREN

Other survivors are the following children: W. H. Barton, superintendent of schools at Bainbridge; Mrs. Margaret Good of Adelphi; Robert L. Barton, superintendent of schools of Monroe-twp, this county; Mrs. Clara Bookwater of Hallsville; Mrs. Ruth Minshall, a teacher in the Adelphi schools; John Barton, who will be superintendent at Scioto-twp beginning next fall after serving at Muhlenberg-twp, and Miss Alice Barton, a teacher in the Salter Creek-twp school. Three sisters, Mrs. Anna Porterfield, of Spokane, Wash.; Mrs. Elizabeth Lloyd, of Columbus, and Mrs. Laura Allen, of New Flymouth, O., also survive.

Dr. Barton, besides being a member of the M. E. church at Adelphi, belonged to the Knights of Pythias, Improved Order of Red Men and various Masonic bodies.

His demise removes one of Adelphi's most substantial citizens.

SOLONS AGAIN RESUME WORK

Clocks Covered As Deadline Passes; May Kill Minimum Wage Bill.

COLUMBUS, June 9.—The legislative embarked today upon the second day of a time-defying spree of bill-passing, threatening simultaneously to kill the minimum wage legislation recommended to Ohio by President Roosevelt.

Adopted in the house yesterday by a vote of 113 to 0, the O'Neill-Pringle bill, embodying a possible death in the senate, despite widespread clamor for this type of social legislation. The senate rules committee tentatively declined to place the bill on the day's calendar, notwithstanding unanimous recommendation by the judiciary committee that the bill be passed.

With its clocks stopped to help it ignore a resolution calling for all general bills to have been passed by yesterday noon, the assembly launched into another mad rush to adopt numerous minor measures and clear the atmosphere for work on taxation, beginning Monday.

The clocks were stopped at 11:45 a. m. yesterday and work went on.

77 BILLS PASSED

A total of 77 bills were passed in the house and senate yesterday during the race toward the end. These included the Lewis government reorganization bill, passed in the senate; the Burke bill for state control of the milk industry, adopted in the house; and the Haynes bill to set up a retirement system for state employees, passed in the house after having already been approved in the senate.

The Lewis and Burke bills are sent to the opposite houses today with their sponsors hoping they can get final approval before the last gavel falls.

STUDENTS HONORED AT O. S. U.

Three To Graduate At Exercises Monday; Two Gain Makio Honor.

Honors awarded to Circleville and Pickaway-co students at Ohio State university were announced, Friday, for this school year.

Three will receive degrees Monday when annual commencement exercises are held in the stadium. They are Carlisle C. Leiss, Pleasant-st, bachelor of laws; John S. Caldwell, S. Court-st, bachelor of science in agriculture; and Mary Elizabeth Kader, Pickaway-twp, bachelor of science in education. Scholarship honors were gained by Alice Ada May, N. Scioto-st, who was elected to Phi Alpha Theta, honorary history society, and by Dorothy C. Adkins, E. Main-st, elected to Gamma Psi Kappa, graduate women's honorary group.

Photographs of two students appear in the representative senior section of the 1933 yearbook, the Makio. They are Miss Rader, who is a member of Alpha Sigma Alpha and Kappa Phi sororities, the Physical Education club, the University chorus and the women's recreation council, and Mr. Caldwell, a member of Alpha Gamma Rho fraternity and who has served as Pickaway-co's member of the committee of 32.

R. C. Kirk, son of Dr. and Mrs. C. C. Kirk, of Orient, Scioto-twp, is the new president of Ohio State university's student medical council. He is a junior in the college of medicine.

Evan J. Phillips, Pinckney-st, and Robert Rooney, E. Union-st, have received recognition for their work with the campus Y. M. C. A. The former is a freshman in the commerce college and the latter a sophomore in the college of education.

STOCK DEALS ARE REVEALED

Lamont Discloses Transfers Which Reduced His Income Taxes.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—The great banking firm of J. P. Morgan and Co., bowed to the power of the U. S. Senate today when one of its younger partners, Thomas S. Lamont, fully described at the Senate banking inquiry a series of personal stock transactions that reduced his income taxes in 1931.

He followed the instructions of J. P. Morgan in testifying about the deals.

The Senate voted its banking committee to investigate the banker's income taxes yesterday. Lamont told of selling a large block of stocks to his wife on Dec. 30, 1930. He repurchased them in April, 1931.

He said the transactions resulted in a saving of $2,035.86. This included $1,440.29 on his own return and $595.57 in his wife's return.

Lamont declared the bureau of internal revenue had approved the transactions.

Lamont wore a dark gray sack suit, no vest and a dark tie. As he took his seat George Whitney, one of the most active Morgan partners and John W. Davis, Morgan attorney, took seats directly behind him.

Davis put his arm around the back of Lamont's chair, and Whitney leaned toward the young looking Morgan partner as he began to testify.

BAKER ENTERS COUNCIL RACE; ROBINSON, TOO

Former Councilman to Seek At-Large Position; Fourth in Race

DEADLINE NEARS

Goeller Again Files for Council Office

Last minute entries into the race for city council were expected today with the deadline for filing set at 6:30 p. m. All petitions must be in the hands of Clerk of the Board of Elections Harry E. Weill at that time.

W. Frank Baker, former Democratic councilman, filed his petition for councilman-at-large, Friday morning, making four in the field with three to be elected. The lineup for councilman-at-large consists of three Democrats, Mr. Baker, Frank A. Marion and Al Walter. Weill is the only one of the three without council experience.

Mr. Baker was defeated two years ago when Mr. Marion was returned to council by the vote of the people.

JEFFRIES TO RUN
Lawrence Jeffries, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Jeffries, is a candidate for city solicitor of Lancaster on the Democratic ticket.

He will be opposed for the nomination by Esther Brocker.

Field with three to be elected. The lineup for councilman-at-large consists of three Democrats, Mr. Baker, Frank A. Marion and Al Walter. Weill is the only one of the three without council experience. Mack Barrett Jr., is the Republican candidate for councilman-at-large meaning that there will be no fight for the three positions at the primary but that there will be in November.

Mr. Baker was defeated two years ago when Mr. Marion was returned to council by the vote of the people.

ROBINSON FILES
Ward W. Robinson, S. Pickaway-st, filed his petition Friday and will oppose Julius H. Halwag for the Democratic nomination for councilman in the second ward. Mr. Halwag defeated Mr. Robinson two years ago for the nomination.

John C. Goeller, president of council, who has been mentioned very freely as a possible candidate for the Democratic nomination for mayor, filed his petition, Friday, but for re-election as council president instead of mayor. He has no opposition for the council position.

As the deadline approached, William B. Cady, S. Scioto-st, was the only Democrat on the ticket for mayor. Mayor B. E. Hedges will have opposition for the Republican nomination, however, provided Frank Davis, former sheriff files his petition.

LEIST, WILL UNOPPOSED
C. O. Leist, first ward councilman and Clark Will, third ward councilman, will go through the primary unopposed. No Republican has been mentioned for first ward councilman at the November election while Mr. Will will have Don J. White, Democrat, opposing him at the election.

Tull M. Barnes and W. M. Reid seek the Democratic nomination for fourth ward councilman.

It is possible for candidates to file on independent tickets after the primary deadline provided they obtain a certain percentage of the total vote at the last municipal election.

Mrs. Roosevelt Denies Report Son To Re-marry

PORT COLUMBUS, June 9.—Denying that her son Elliott Roosevelt, is to remarry soon "as far as I know," and insisting that her son's life is his own, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt left here by airplane at 7:01 a. m. (EST) today for Newark, N. J.

Mrs. Roosevelt arrived in Columbus at 5:43 o'clock this morning after an all-night airplane trip from Fort Worth, Tex. Despite the all-night trip, the first lady appeared refreshed as she stepped from the plane.

Flashing a broad smile of greeting, she enjoyed the night ride. After having slept most of the way to Columbus, she was awakened just before the plane landed at Port Columbus.

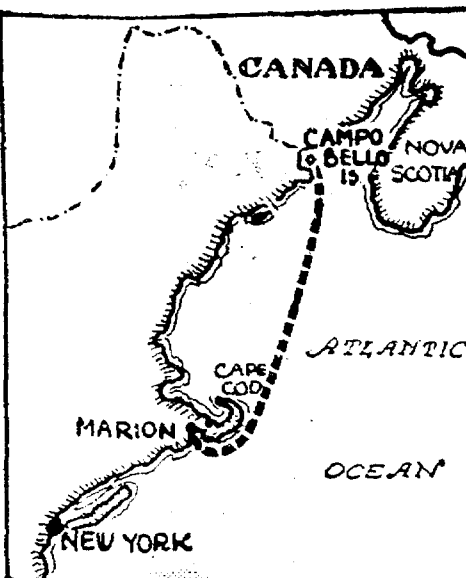

Confronted here with reports that her son, Elliott Roosevelt, may marry Miss Ruth Googins, socially prominent Fort Worth girl, Mrs. Roosevelt declared:

"Elliott is not planning to marry soon as far as I know."

The first lady said her visit with her son had nothing to do with his marital rift.

MANSFIELD, June 9.—Judge Walter H. Monney of Wooster, today was assigned to preside over the first degree murder trial which opens here Monday of James Allen, a former inmate of Mansfield reformatory, accused in connection with the slaying of Frank B. Hanger, a reformatory guard.

Ready for President's Cruise

Here is the little schooner Amberjack II on which President Roosevelt will spend a short vacation cruise, beginning June 10. At left is a map of the President's route. After a visit to Dr. William McDonald, an old friend, at Marion, Mass., the President will join the Amberjack and sail, with his boys, up the coast to Campobello Island, N. B.

Senate Leaders Rush Works Bill

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Riding rough-shod over insurgent groups and beating down all major attacks, administration forces in the Senate today waged a spectacular struggle to force final passage of the industrial control and $3,300,000,000 public works bill in time for final adjournment of the special session tomorrow night.

Wary and haggard senators, feeling the effects of a grueling 13-hour verbal rough-and-tumble over the industrial control provisions, wrangled as to methods of apportioning the $400,000,000 federal highway grant.

The only big fight remaining, however, centered on how to raise the $220,000,000 annual revenue for public works. Three separate plans were up for consideration. One involved increased income and gasoline taxes, approved by the Senate finance committee; and the third, a general manufacturers' sales tax, which found support both in Republican and Democratic ranks.

HOPES TO ADJOURN
Senator Harrison (D) of Mississippi, chairman of the finance committee, declared, "We will pass the bill tonight and send it to conference. I still believe we can adjourn tomorrow night."

In the dramatic session of yesterday, lasting from 10 a. m. until 11 p. m., repeated assaults upon the bill were crushed by the huge administration majority.

Throwing to the winds a tariff policy of many years standing, the Democrats joined Republican allies to write into the bill a tariff provision even more drastic than that approved by the finance committee.

This provision, offered by Senator Walsh (D) of Massachusetts, would give the President power to impose embargoes and quotas against foreign imports, together with import taxes in the form of licensing charges against American firms receiving foreign shipments. Fifty-nine senators voted for it. Democrats joined with Senator Norris (R) of Nebraska to oppose it. A record vote was forced by Senator McNary (R) of Oregon, despite Democratic accusations that he was "playing politics."

TEXAN AGAIN RAISES PLANE
Mattern Strives To Make Up Lost Time In Round-World Tour.

MOSCOW, June 9.—Striving to make up for lost time, James Mattern, round-the-world flier, flew to Krasnyarsk in fast time today and hopped off four hours later for an unknown destination, presumably China.

Early advices received here failed to state whether Mattern succeeded in effecting full repairs to his damaged plane at Krasnyarsk, or decided to wait until he reaches China before subjecting the craft to a thorough overhauling.

Mattern took off from the town of Bielovo, where he had been forced down by a broken fuel pipe, shortly after 9 p. m., Thursday E. D. T.

He reached Krasnyarsk at 4:30 a. m., G. M. T. (12:30 a. m. E. D. T.), and took off in the direction of China at 8:40 a. m., G. M. T. (4:40 a. m. E. D. T.).

The short duration of his stop in Krasnyarsk indicated that Mattern was unable to obtain the materials needed for thorough repairs.

When he landed at Bielovo, almost unconscious from gasoline fumes and nauseated, Mattern cracked up the tail surface of his plane and was obliged to repair it with sheet iron. He intended to replace the original material and overhaul the entire plane before starting the last stages of his hazardous Siberian flight.

YOUTHS RELEASED
Howard Rogers 15, E. Walnut-st, was released from the county jail Thursday when 50 charges were preferred against him following his arrest Wednesday night with Carl Malone 16, and Robert Gephart 14, also of E. Walnut-st.

The boys were arrested when they were seen to enter the garage of Dr. E. J. Lilly, E. Union-st.

JUDGMENT TAKEN
The Pickaway-co Finance Co., has taken a judgment against C. P. Heiskell, this city, in Ross-co common pleas court for $558.

Washington, June 9.—Riding rough-shod over insurgent groups and beating down all major attacks, administration forces in the Senate today waged a spectacular struggle to force final passage of the industrial control and $3,300,000,000 public works bill in time for final adjournment of the special session tomorrow night.

Wary and haggard senators, feeling the effects of a grueling 13-hour verbal rough-and-tumble over the industrial control provisions, wrangled as to methods of apportioning the $400,000,000 federal highway grant.

The only big fight remaining, however, centered on how to raise the $220,000,000 annual revenue for public works. Three separate plans were up for consideration. One involved increased income and gasoline taxes, approved by the Senate finance committee; and the third, a general manufacturers' sales tax, which found support both in Republican and Democratic ranks.

HOPES TO ADJOURN
Senator Harrison (D) of Mississippi, chairman of the finance committee, declared, "We will pass the bill tonight and send it to conference. I still believe we can adjourn tomorrow night."

Little Relief Seen as Wind Changes; at 95 at Noon Today

MANY LIVES TAKEN

Thursday Temperature Sets Record for City

Shifting winds brought a measure of relief from the blistering three-day heat wave that shattered all local records, Friday, as above-normal temperatures prevailed.

The thermometer of Dr. H. H. Clarke, government observer, topped the 100-degree mark Thursday afternoon for what is thought to be an all-time record for the city. The lowest temperature during the night and early morning was 75 degrees.

Government meteorologists in the midwest promised a drop of 12 degrees in temperature today and declared that the mercury will remain far above normal for three more days. The heat claimed more than 100 persons throughout the central states it is reported.

Farmers in some parts of the midwest were plowing their corn by moonlight to escape the oppressive rays of the sun.

The torrid wave moved eastward, Thursday, and left 19 persons dead in the Chicago area from heat prostration and heart failure induced by the abnormal temperatures. The official level of the Chicago area was 97 degrees, three degrees below the high of Wednesday.

The heat claimed more than 100 persons throughout the central states it is reported.

Farmers in some parts of the midwest were plowing their corn by moonlight to escape the oppressive rays of the sun.

Temperatures as a whole ranged less throughout the state than a checkup showed. In Columbus the mercury was around 100 degrees during the day. Yesterday, the temperature reached 98 degrees, official level of the city.

The normal temperature in June 9, according to weather forecasters in Columbus, is 79 degrees. The highest temperature for the date is 96 degrees which was established in 1914.

Temperatures in Cleveland, likewise, were down a bit today. At 10 a. m. the mercury was read at 75 degrees. The decline was due to cloudiness. The maximum temperature in Cleveland yesterday was 98.

106 AT DELAWARE
One of the "hottest spots" in Ohio yesterday was Delaware, where the temperature was officially read at 106 degrees. One person collapsed and died there from the heat. He was J. C. McMorrey, an engineer in the Southern Ohio Electric Co., plant.

Four persons died at Cincinnati and many were prostrated by the heat. John Wetterer, 24, and Lester Foltz, 16, drowned when they went swimming in an effort to escape the heat. Nicholas Heitic, 44, died in a hospital after being stricken while at work in the Diamond Match Co. The body of an itinerant, James O'Keefe, was found on a wharf along the Ohio river.

CITY GRANTED $1900 CHECK
Distribution Made From Beer Permit Receipts; Other Districts Paid.

Miss Lillian Young, city auditor, reported Friday that she had received a check for $1,900 as Circleville's share of money collected from beer permits by the state since April 7.

Cliff M. White, county auditor, has received no word whether or not he will receive any of the money for townships, municipalities and villages. There is possibility the checks will be sent directly to township, municipality and village clerks as Pickaway-co itself will not receive any of the money, it is reported.

Approximately $1,500,000 has been collected by the state since April 7. Columbus and Franklin co. will receive $14,000, this representing money from 12 distributors and two breweries. Returns from retailers in the district have not been completed.

Cuyahoga-co will receive the largest amount, $190,025, representing permits issued to five breweries, 29 distributors and 1,555 retailers.

BAER'S RIGHT HAND DEFEATS SCHMELING; NOW CONTENDER

Mercifully Stops Fight in Tenth Round After Baer Goes Down Nine Count; Former Champion Never Has Look-in; Dempsey is 'Made' as Promotor

NEW YORK, June 9.—Max Baer, the swash-buckling thumper from California, stands out today as the top-notch challenger for the heavyweight championship of the world—and he owes this distinction to his good right hand.

The right hand whizzed through the tenth round of his fight with Max Schmeling of Germany last night and struck the heavyweights champion on the forehead with a bolt of lightning. It was a devastating force that the German and courageous Teuton was unable to resist. He was wobbling into the ropes, wobbling and glassy-eyed.

As the bell-ringer of the fight followed the knock-out punch to the tenth round, it wasn't a matter of time before the referee would have stopped the fight, but the money was in it.

PERFECT TARGET

The roundhouse right—it was a "telegraphed" swing—was the key to Baer's victory. Schmeling had been knocked or rolled dozens of times, but this time, as it came through the humid atmosphere, the German seemed to be transfixed, a perfect target in the blazing spotlight.

Schmeling's knees buckled as the fatal right ricocked into his mark and into his chest. He came against the ropes and it was as if he were about to be sent to the floor. But no! With the instinct of a true fighter, the German forced himself erect and met the rush of his foe.

He was, and with the killer's instinct, Baer pounced upon his victim and shot half a dozen or more driving lefts and rights to the head. Bing, bang, bang, bang—bang—they went in there, a rapid and ferocious succession of bone crushing blows.

And then the German fell.

Slowly, as if in slow motion, he sagged to the canvas. The mob—the 20,000 within the arena—roared with excitement as Referee Arthur Donovan stood over the fallen Baer, his chest heaving and smacking his gloves together in a form of nervous agitation, fell back to his feet.

FIRE GONE FROM EYES

Schmeling lay there, motionless for four or five seconds. At the count of seven he grooved to his knees but the fire of battle seemed to have disappeared from his eyes. He put up his hands feebly as the towering Baer rushed at him like a madman. Once again, Baer smacked him into the ropes. Again the strapping Californian unleashed a flurry of lefts and rights to the head.

Baer, as if in pity, halted in his fury for a brief moment and glanced at the referee. And then, as Baer was about to unlimber a lethal right, which might have had a serious result, Referee Donovan humanely jumped between the men and stopped it.

It was a technical knockout for Baer, officially chalked up as having occurred after one minute and fifty-one seconds of the tenth round of what was to have been a fifteen round bout.

The result was a startling upset for, almost without exception, the boxing experts of the east had picked Schmeling to win, figuring his ring brains, experience and endurance to say nothing of his vaunted right, would be enough to overcome Baer's sheer punching power.

Baer started off in a sizzling manner, taking the first three rounds. Schmeling held him even in the fourth and then began to come, taking the fifth. Baer, however, took the sixth by a narrow margin. The German won the seventh, the eighth was even and Baer had a shade in the ninth. By this time Baer apparently realized Schmeling couldn't hurt him and he came out in the fatal tenth, swinging like a wild man from the bell.

Financially, as well as artistically, last night's spectacle in Yankee stadium was a success. And, as a consequence, the glamorous Jack Dempsey, who promoted the show, was hailed today as a sort of "Second Tex Rickard." It was regarded as quite a feat for him to lure 60,000 spectators who paid somewhere about $250,000 in the aggregate to see a prize fight in these days of "tight money."

HEAT BLAMED

Schmeling's fall today was that the heat—the thermometer registered around 90, a near high record—and the blazing lights which beat down upon him, beat him.

But we who saw the fight think different.

It was that right hand of Max Baer's—that right hand that came out of somewhere in Babe Ruth's territory in right field and struck him on the button.

BIRDS AND SAINTS SPLIT TWO GAMES

Jim Lindsey bested Floyd Newkirk but to turn the tables Slim Harless outpitched Bud Tenschout and the Columbus Red Bird-St. Paul Apostle double-header was split Thursday afternoon.

The Birds took the first game 3-2 but the Saints the second 5-3.

Consecutive hits by Shires, Cullip and Rothrock won the first game while Hill's double and Tod's single gave the Saints the second game.

The Birds opened a series with Milwaukee's Brewers this afternoon at the stadium with Ralph Judy scheduled for mound duty.

Laughing Around the World

With IRVIN S. COBB

He Could Have Used A Blotter

By IRVIN S. COBB

It is told—in fact it has been told a great many years—of an Irishman who, passing along the street, saw in the window of a shop a sign reading:

WE SELL EVERYTHING BY THE YARD.

He faced about and entered the place and, accosting a salesman, said:

"So you sell everything by the yard?"

"We do."

"Very well then, gimme a yard of sweet milk."

"Sweet milk?"

"Shure; that's white goods, ain't it?"

"Shure; you're right," said the clerk, who prided himself on being quick-witted. From a recess on a shelf he lifted down a parcel containing his noonday lunch. He opened the bundle and took out a quart bottle of fresh milk. He opened the bottle, then dipped a forefinger in the contents and drew a long pale streak along the top of the counter.

"There you are," he said triumphantly; "one yard of milk. The price is a quarter."

"And cheap enough," said the customer. "Just roll it up now and I'll take it along with me."

Weather Cuts Crowds at Scout Court of Honor

BY REYNOLD GREENE.

The sweltering heat wave covering Circleville and Pickaway-co. Thursday night, cut a decided crimp in the Boy Scout Court of Honor held in the Memorial Hall.

The Scouts themselves were evidently kept away from the court by the torrid weather as only about 40 of the youths appeared for the ceremony, with Troop 107 making the major portion of that group.

The high school band entertained the few parents and scouts with three selections before the entry of the court composed of Meeker Terwilliger, D. D. Dowden, Emmitt L. Crist, C. C. Young, Tom A. Renick, Ford M. Pickett and George D. McDowell, chairman.

Court members, too, were absent attending to other duties so that only two bona fide members of the court appeared, they being Mr. Renick and Mr. McDowell.

After the invocation by Rev. T. C. Harper, of the United Brethren church, Chairman McDowell introduced the court and presentation of awards was begun with Robert L. Brehmer making presentation of first and second class awards and Dr. C. J. Hocky of Ashville, making the merit badge awards.

PLAC PRESENTED

Presentation of the district flag by R. L. Brehmer to Troop 107 created excitement among the scouts as the troop has possessed the flag on three other occasions and that Thursday they issued a defy that they would keep it from now on.

An address by Rev. Harper directed to the parents and the scouts on "Trustworthy" was enthusiastically received.

Mr. Renick then made the higher awards to life and star scouts, and in giving the awards explained the significance of each.

Renick himself, is the possessor of the Eagle Scout award, the highest in scouting. This award was made to the local man in 1916 and was the first award to an Eagle Scout in Ohio at that time. Another youth in some other city was awarded the same honor simultaneously, according to Renick, who wore the medal in Thursday night's court.

Higher awards made by Renick had five youths flanked with Chester Hocky of Troop 94, Ashville, being the only Scout present to receive the award of Star Scout.

ROUGH ARGUMENTS END IN ARRESTS

Sheriff Charles H. Radcliff and Deputy Robert E. Armstrong, Thursday afternoon, were called to the Clint Fortner farm in Jackson-twp to quell an argument between Fortner and Sam Wilson, his partner, in which a 12-gauge shot-gun was allegedly brought into play.

Fortner said that he had backed Wilson, who was sent some land and furnished seed and other materials for Wilson to farm the land and that each was to share the profits equally and that recently he and Wilson had been having trouble.

Thursday noon, according to Fortner, he stopped at the farm and was looking over some peas when Wilson approached him with a shotgun. A fight ensued and the gun was dropped to the ground and picked up by Joe Black, a helper of Fortner's, and discharged.

Fortner then claimed that Wilson retreated and drew a knife and threatened to cut him.

Wilson on the other hand denied attacking Fortner saying that the later was the aggressor in the fracas and that the shotgun was being used to kill crows. Wilson did, however, admit drawing the knife.

Wilson was returned here by Sheriff Radcliff and after an all afternoon parley the differences were ironed out and both were released.

Others listed to receive high honors were Raymond Hill, 197, as Life scout; Arthur Goodman, 167, Star scout; Earl Morris and Herbert Dennis of 116, Star scouts.

In the first class scout awards Hildeburn Jones, Jr., 107, was the only scout present to receive the award although many others were listed. Others were: Ted Corcoran, Emill Stonerock, Conway Stonerock and Robert Carter of Williamsport Troop 43; Joe Smalley of 107, and Jack Mahoney, Carl Leshner and Earl Garner of Troop 158.

Only one second class award was to be made and that was to go to Eugene Hbert of New Holland Troop 146. He was not present.

MERIT BADGES

Five youths were awarded merit badges although 28 were listed to receive the honors for meritorious work done in the past three months. Those present who received awards were: Ches Rockey, Troop 81, Ashville; Joe Bell, Jr., and Hildeburn Jones of 107; Mark Maxey and Don Beatty of Troop 158.

Other awards to be made were to: Emill Stonerock, Conway Stonerock, Robert Carter, Everett Tomlinson, Herman Carter and Drexel LeMay of Troop 43; Williamsport; Joe Smalley, Robert Ward and Raymond Hill of Troop 107; Charles Ater, Homer Ater, Galen Hosler, Thomas Kirkpatrick, Earl Morris and Herbert Dennis of New Holland Troop 146; Dick Mahoney, Earl Garner, Carl Leshner, Maurice Rickels, James Price and Jack Coleman of American Legion Troop 158; and William Towers and Arthur Goodman of Troop 167.

South America's Official War Provides Big Test for League

Paraguay's Declaration of War on Bolivia Opportunity for Geneva Body—of Which Both Nations Are Members—to Justify Its Existence.

SOUTH AMERICA THEATRE OF WAR PRES DANIEL SALAMANCA of Bolivia

GENERAL HANS KUNDT PRES EUSEBIO AYALA of PARAGUAY

When President Eusebio Ayala of Paraguay formally declared war on the neighboring country of Bolivia, he did more than hurl the two countries at each other's throats—he put the League of Nations on trial. Both Paraguay and Bolivia are members of the League, and if that august body cannot control its own members, then it must admit failure to carry out the purpose for which it was created. Although there has been fighting in many parts of the world since the European cataclysm, this is the first official war with which the League has had to deal since its conception. And should the Geneva body fail to bring its refractory members into line, there is little it can offer by way of excuse. The Paraguay-Bolivia trouble has been brewing for years, and there has been fighting in many parts of the world since the European cataclysm, this is the first official war with which the League has had to deal since its conception. vest—and, for the garden crop, the season of canning, drying, pickling, or preserving in some way to provide food for next winter. Housewives, canning clubs, and community canning centers are already busy in those parts of the country that have an early growing season. Soon the y will be busy everywhere. As a sign of this, every mail brings guides about food preservation methods to the Bureau of Home Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. The bureau is ready to answer these questions. On its staff are specialists in food preservation, and some of its publications have been prepared especially to meet this need. As to canning in particular, there is a pamphlet which gives specific directions for home canning of vegetables and fruits. There is also a circular on community canning centers, describing equipment and making suggestions for the operation of the center. Most of the household arts had their beginnings in the primitive nineteenth century discovery, and it originated as a plan for mass production. Napoleon, to provide for his armies, offered a prize for the development of some method of preserving perishable food. A French chef and confectioner, Nicholas Appert, won that prize by the success of his experiments with a process which we now know as canning. He cooked the food, then packed and sealed it airtight, and the food kept for many months. Neither Appert nor anybody else in his day knew why. More than 40 years later the great French scientist Louis Pasteur announced to the world two important discoveries. Micro-organisms present in food, water, and air cause spoilage of food. Heat destroys those micro-organisms, and sterilizes the food. Here was the secret of Appert's success. Since Appert's time, and especially since Pasteur, there have been new developments in the canning process. The old-time way was to cook the food, pack it boiling hot into hot containers, and seal it quickly to shut out air. This is the "open kettle" method and it works with fruit and tomatoes, provided there is no contamination at the moment between packing and sealing the containers. A later method is the "cold-pack," by which the food is packed cold and the filled container is "processed," or sterilized, in a water-bath or pressure canner. The Bureau of Home Economics recommends the "hot-pack" method, however, in preference to either of these. For the hot-pack the food is heated in a minimum quantity of liquid, in order to reduce the bulk and drive out air. Then the containers are packed with the boiling hot food and processed in a water-bath. These methods can be used with the acid foods, such as fruits, tomatoes, pickled beets, and ripe plums, because the presence of the acid together with the boiling temperature destroys the micro-organisms that cause spoilage. For nonacid foods, such as meats, corn, beans, peas, asparagus, or baby beets, "processing" in the pressure cooker is recommended by the Bureau of Home Economics. In these foods, which lack the acid found in fruits and tomatoes, such higher temperatures are needed to destroy the micro-organisms of spoilage than are required for acid foods. Only with a pressure canner, says the bureau, can these high temperatures be obtained. Farmer's Bulletin No. 1471-F, entitled, "Canning Fruits and Vegetables at Home," contains specific directions on all these points. It can be had from the Bureau of Home Economics, U. S. Department of Agriculture, or from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C., who has it for sale at 5 cents per copy. A circular of suggestions for the equipment and operation of community canning centers is available from the bureau free of charge.

RECIPES
French Toast
1 or 2 eggs.
1-2 to 3-4 cup milk.
Salt.
Butter or other fat.
Bread.
Cut well-baked, even-textured, rather dry bread into uniform slices about 1/4 inch thick. Beat the eggs and add the milk and salt. Dip the slices of bread quickly into the egg mixture, drain, and fry at once in butter or well-seasoned fat. Use moderate heat and let the toast become golden brown before turning.

Savory Vegetable Stew
1 cup diced salt pork.
1 small onion.
2 cups diced carrots.
2 cups diced potato.
1-2 teaspoon salt.
1-2 teaspoon sage.
2 cups hot water.
1-8 teaspoons pepper.
Fry the diced salt pork until crisp. Remove the pork and some of the fat from the skillet and brown the onion and carrot in the remaining fat. Add the potato, salt, sage, and water. Cover and simmer until the vegetables are tender. Remove the cover and cook until the stew has thickened somewhat. Add the crisped salt pork, pepper, and more salt, if needed. Serve on toast.

Oatmeal Drop Cookies
1-2 cup fat.
1 cup sugar.
1 egg.
1 1/2 cups sifted flour.
1-2 teaspoon salt.
2 teaspoons cinnamon.
2 teaspoons baking powder.
1-2 cup milk.
1 1/2 cups fine oatmeal.
1 cup seedless raisins.
Cream the fat and sugar, and add the beaten egg. Sift together the dry ingredients—except the oatmeal—and add with the milk to the first mixture. Add the oatmeal and raisins. Mix well. Drop by spoonfuls onto a greased baking sheet and bake to a golden brown in a moderately hot oven (375 deg. to 400 deg. F.). Remove from the pan while hot.

ASHVILLE
The Young People's class of the local U. B. church will be entertained at the home of Mrs. Grover Cline on Scioto-st. Friday evening, June 9.
The Ladies' Aid of the local Lutheran church held its regular monthly meeting in the parlor of the church Wednesday afternoon, June 7.
The canning factory expects to open next Wednesday in full force for canning peas, although the field workers predicts a short crop, owing to the rotting of the roots of the vines, caused by the wet early spring.

FORD V-8 SHOW EXCELLENT MARK

In an economy test run, held recently at Bartlesville, Okla., a new Ford V-8 Tudor Sedan set up the remarkable record of an average of 18.8 miles per gallon of fuel for 10,054.9 miles. The run was sponsored by the Bartlesville Daily Enterprise. Packed into the run were more miles than the average driver covers in a year's time. The run was made under all kinds of weather conditions including heavy rain and strong winds. Temperatures reached as high as 94 degrees. Operating at a speed of 50 miles or more per hour over good and bad roads, up and down hills, through rain, fog and mud, it averaged 18.8 miles per gallon, using Phillips sixty-six oil and gasoline for the entire trip. No oil was added between 1000-mile changes and not one cent expended for repairs.

SCOTCH WIN TITLE

The last of the Contests of Nationalities of the Lutheran Brotherhood was held Thursday evening with the Scotch group having the program under the direction of George C. Griffith. Five of the nine in the group were in the Highland Kilts and Clarence Wolf impersonated a Scotch lassie. Tom Hickey just couldn't get the right costume for he appeared first as a German, next as an Irish cop, third as a negro and finally in a red dotted kilt outfit instead of the plaid. The program was as follows: "Blue Bells of Scotland" by the entire group. "Coming Through the Rye" and five verses made especially for the occasion, sung by Mr. Griffith, Mr. Wolf, Luther Bower, Will Fitzpatrick and Charles Weidinger. Tom Hickey then entered as a German and a short talk on Scotland followed. An illustrated banner by Mr. Griffith and a song "It's Nice to Get Up" by Mr. Griffith preceded a group impersonation by Charles Weidinger and Howard Griffith. Tom Hickey then turned Irish with several two-minute play-ettes following. They were entitled Mrs. McTwist at the Butcher Shop; The Aeroplane Ride; Two Scotchmen Smoking; Scotchman in Chicago; Scotchman

"SO HAPPY THAT I TRIED ALL-BRAN"

Delicious Cereal Brought Relief From Constipation
If you have headaches, loss of appetite and energy, sleeplessness or any other of the frequent effects of constipation, read Mrs. Schneider's letter:
"Since I have been eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, I don't have to take anything else for constipation. How good it is, and how much better it is for constipation than pills or any other medicine.
"I would never go back to what I used to take, because Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is wholesome and healthful."
—Mrs. John Schneider, 950 Tenth Street, Oshkosh, Wisconsin.
Constipation is usually due to lack of "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract. ALL-BRAN has both, as well as iron for the blood.
The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of lettuce. Within the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, it clears out the wastes.
Try ALL-BRAN in place of pills and drugs—so often habit-forming. Two tablespoonfuls daily will overcome most types of constipation. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.
Use as a cereal, or in cooking. Recipes on the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Seed Important

THE same directness of approach that has characterized the new administration's method of handling domestic problems will be applied in the proceedings of the world economic conference if the American delegation has its way.

This was indicated by Chairman Hull of the delegation in departing for London. Mr. Hull, reflecting the views of President Roosevelt, indicated that it will be the aim of the Americans to speed the proceedings as much as possible by avoiding irrelevant discussion and handling each problem in the most efficient manner.

This purpose is a highly desirable one. If it can be accomplished, the chances of success will be greatly increased. The task will not be an easy one, however. The large number of nations represented and the complexity of the problems to be considered constitute an obstacle of no small importance.

The conference represents a common effort by the nations of the world to rescue the latter from the economic bog into which it has sunk. To be successful, individual interests must be merged into the common good. The delegates must look at the problems before them from the world standpoint rather than from that of their particular nations.

This particular nations' attitude seems to be recognized by the statesmen of most of the participating countries. If they will bend their efforts in the one direction, there seems little doubt that important results will be achieved.

Chairman Hull hopes that the conference can complete its work within six or eight weeks. This doesn't appear to be impossible provided it is prevented from becoming a mere debating body, which has proved to be the fate of many international conferences.

Failure of the conference to accomplish anything worth while would have disastrous results. Realization of this should act as a spur to those who will direct the proceedings as well as to the rank and file of delegates.

Boycott Threatened

A CHINESE boycott of Japanese goods was one of the admitted causes of Japan's invasion of China.

Now Japanese spinners are threatening to boycott Indian cotton in retaliation for the action of the British government in canceling the Indo-Japanese trade agreement as preliminary to increasing tariffs on Japanese cloth.

The Tokyo government has given no endorsement to the proposal. The foreign office says if the spinners carry out their threat it will be without the government's consent. But will the government take any steps to prevent it? Apparently not.

The Chinese boycott of Japanese goods because they believed Japan was pursuing an unjust policy toward their country. The Japanese spinners are threatening action against Indian cotton because they think the British government has acted unjustly.

Should the boycott threat be carried out, would Japan consider Great Britain justified in sending an army into Japan and seizing part of the latter? Hardly. Yet the British would be doing what the Japanese are doing in China.

Old Cars a Peril

THERE is little surprise in the finding of the Travelers Insurance company that the number of automobiles with defective brakes, tires, lights or steering mechanism in fatal accidents increased 40 per cent during the first four months of the present year.

The insurance company based its conclusion on an examination of automobile fatality figures covering this period.

The situation, of course, reflects one of many phases of the depression. Persons unable to buy new cars have continued to operate their old ones and without having needed repairs made. The insurance company's figures showed an increase of 29 per cent in the number of cars with defective brakes.

THE CHALLENGE OF LOVE

by WARWICK DEEPING

CHAPTER FIFTY-TWO

John Wolfe's coming was the coming of the general in command. Hospital and commissariat staffs stared more than seemed absolutely necessary. Jess was under fire, and was unconscious of the fact, her eyes looking towards Ursula Brandon, who was waiting for them by the terrace steps.

"I could not keep away, Mrs. Brandon; I heard you wanted help."

Ursula smiled at Jess, studying her as she smiled. It was the attitude of the woman towards the girl.

"That is the spirit we want. Will you go over and help the others to cut out sheets?"

"I'll do anything you ask me to, Ursula."

Jess found herself kneeling under one of the cedars, and snipping away at a bale of calico with a pair of bright new scissors. But her eyes wandered away towards John Wolfe. He was standing talking to Ursula Brandon where the steps led up from the lawn to the terrace. The massed colours of the well-watered flowers in the borders raised a broad background of rose and of gold. Beyond stood the warm, red-walled house, mellow, stately, suggesting aloofness and some awe to Jess's eyes.

They were talking like intimate friends—those two. Ursula Brandon showed animation, fire, reflecting the glow of the man's vitality. Jess had a sudden, queer, lost feeling at the heart. She sat back on her heels, watching, forgetting her scissors and the roll of white stuff before her. She discovered the desire that John Wolfe should leave Mrs. Ursula Brandon and come and talk to her, even if only for a moment.

Presently he came. Jess knelt there at his feet, not looking up, her dark lashes making shadows on her cheeks, her scissors busy.

"When are we to go to the hospital, John?"

"The hospital isn't in being yet."

"Has she done all this?"

"Mrs. Brandon? Yes. I never came across anyone with a better head for organization. She has thought of everything down to feeding-cups and safety pins. I must say I was astonished. To look at her you would not think such a woman would trouble."

Jess's head remained bowed.

A cynic could have amused himself by walking about Navestock and watching the remarkable unanimity with which the people of the upper middle-class decided that they needed a change of air. The "White Hart" coach and all the wagons in the town were kept busy, carrying the fugitives to Wannington station. The Wilks family was one of the first to leave, the young ladies pressing scented handkerchiefs to their noses, and old Wilks, the squirrel, nibbling at the daily paper. Miss Perfection was borne off, scattering "heart attacks" like handbills along the road. The Turbells went to Scotland. Johnson, the wine merchant, departed for Yarmouth, taking his daughters and his parrot with him, the bird perched in its cage on the top of the cab, shouting "Monte, Monte" outside Dr. Threadgold's windows.

Many of the wealthier tradespeople discovered that it was the psychological moment for a holiday. Business languished, and was left to take care of itself. Threadgold's assistant deserted live brakes involved in accidents causing one or more deaths, 33 per cent in the number of those having worn-out tires, 60 per cent in the number with defective lights and 25 per cent in those whose steering mechanism was faulty.

There are signs that replacement of old cars is beginning to be made, but it will be a good while before the process is completed.

The Housewife's Question Box

Question: What causes peaches and pears at the top of a jar to turn dark?

Answer: This is due to the fact that the jar has stood for a long time, but it is usually due to unhygienic activity which causes the fruit to turn dark and unless the fruit is sufficiently heated this enzyme, the discoloration will take place.

Either the processing period was not long enough to exhaust the air sufficiently or the temperature of the fruit was not high enough to render the enzyme inactive. The remedy for this is to increase the processing period from 5 to 10 minutes.

(Answered by the nutrition specialist of the Ohio Agricultural Extension Service.)

him early in August. Mr. Talbot Twenty being a hireling with "nerves." He smiled for a while on people with his yellow teeth, stumbled over doormats, readjusted his pince-nez that were always slipping, and then vanished out of Navestock. Threadgold had begun to be bewildered. His bewilderment increased as the work thickened, but he continued to go bowling about in his carriage and popping in and out of doors. A man's intellect may fail him, but his manner may survive. Threadgold's manner was the product of years of affable pomposity. It took command of him in the crisis, carried him about, spoke for him, kept him moving. Threadgold was dazed, but his manner was on working, and persisted in uttering the same pompous platitudes.

The people in the river alleys were brutally ignorant and ignorantly stubborn. The stultifying stupidity of the town threatened Wolfe's hospital scheme from the very first. The marquees and tents were pitched, the volunteers at their posts. The difficulty lay in getting the sick children. Stupid affection, sheer obstinacy, ignorant prejudice, made many of the cottagers refuse to let the youngsters be taken away.

"You be wanting to cut 'em about. I know ye."

That was what one poor woman threw in John Wolfe's face.

Compassion made him patient. He and Robert Flemming went from house to house, arguing, pleading, scolding. Wolfe began to grow fierce with some of the fools.

Many of them would not let the children go, and would not feed them properly when they kept them. With the co-operation of some of the farmers, Wolfe had arranged to have fresh country milk distributed for the use of the sick. It was imperative that those who were ill should have no solid food. And again and again Wolfe caught them feeding the youngsters on such stuff as bacon and stewed cabbage.

Ursula Brandon was watching Jess tending a sick little boy in the marquee hospital.

"I think she is about the best nurse I have," Ursula told Dr. Wolfe.

"Plenty of pluck. I suppose she eats and sleeps properly?"

"Yes, I see to that; I am very imperious."

"We should never have been able to manage this without you."

Wolfe saw Jess alone for a few minutes before he left.

"All right, Jess?"

"Yes, quite."

"Absolutely sure?"

"Shall I put my tongue out, John?"

He flipped her cheek.

"Be careful."

"Oh, I am very careful. It is just splendid here, and I get on so well with the children. Aren't those people in Navestock wretches?"

"Who?"

"The ignorant wretches who won't let their sick children be brought out here. I should like to go through Navestock with a whip."

Perhaps nothing shocked Navestock more than the deaths of old Hubbard, and Johnson, the butcher. For years these men had been part of the intimate life of the town; old Hubbard, with his round, lard-coloured, mildly owl-wise face; Johnson, the beef-red bully, smacking his great hands together and howling with laughter. Their deaths were like the taking down of famous tavern signs. Hubbard died in his sleep; Johnson in the full wakefulness of blasphemous terror. Robert Flemming had looked grey and tired when he had come away from Johnson's bedside.

"That chap Wolfe will be pleased, darn him. I don't care. I've led a straight life, and I ain't been stinging. What have I got to die for, what have I got to die for? I don't want to go!"

Then whimpering, curses against Threadgold—"old mutton head"—"blasted, bodgering fool!"

Then, too, these slow-thinking and patient people began to realize that this pest might not have struck Navestock so fiercely, had the landlords chosen to do what the doctors had advised. Money, yes! It would have cost a deal of money! The talk in the ale-houses and at the doorways became cynical and bitter.

September brought rain. Dr. Wolfe, riding back over Tarring Moor with a storm racing up, saw Ursula Brandon's hospital white as newly-washed linen spread out on a bank to dry. The sunlight shone on it, but even as Wolfe watched, the edge of a storm cloud covered the sun. A great hand might have flung a dark net over Navestock. The glamour went. A wind came over the moor. Rain began to fall.

The drops were rattling on the flapping canvas of the marquees and tents before Wolfe reached the hospital. Most of the children were asleep. In the big marquee two nurses were talking together in whispers.

"How are things getting on?"

"Very well in here, doctor. Miss Mascell is with Jennie Sanders in No. 3 tent."

The two nurses looked at each other, questioning.

"I don't think she is quite herself, doctor."

"Oh!"

"Of course she pretends. But three days ago—"

Wolfe went striding round the tent pegs with a word of thanks to the nurses. In No. 3 Jess was bending over a bed and settling an ice-bag against the shaven head of a child of seven. There was a listlessness about her movements, an apathy that could not be concealed.

Wolfe came to the doorway in time to see Jess step back from the bed with a little tragic gesture.

"Oh, bother my head."

Then she turned and saw him. A kind of guilty flush went over her face, for there was something in John Wolfe's eyes that frightened her.

"Why, John! Do come and look; I think Jennie is going to pull through."

He came into the tent, studying her with the searching glance of a man who was afraid to see that for which he looked.

"You're not well, Jess."

"The sparkle had gone out of her. It is only a headache. I don't mind so long as the child pulls through. Come and look at her, John."

Wolfe ignored the child on the bed. He went to Jess, and stood over her, intent almost to stoop.

"Give me your hand. You have felt like this for some days?"

"Yes, John."

"Why didn't you tell me?"

"I didn't want to bother. Besides

"Jess, that wasn't fair, dear. Your hand is hot, you're feverish."

The Kings Bishops Pawn Opening

By IRVIN S. COBB

THE late Bert Green, who will be remembered by vaudeville audiences as a gifted pianist and composer, told me this one a few months before his untimely death. He said it really happened.

Two very small boys ran away from their homes one day in the town where Green used to spend his summers. The grandfather of one of the truants was a distinguished clergyman, of the Episcopal church. Toward evening the little rascals found themselves lost in a dense woodland several miles from home. The dusk was closing in. They were tired and footsore and homesick and they were beginning to get frightened.

"I s'pect we'd better pray," said one of the pair, preparing to kneel. "No," said his companion, "let me do the praying."

He sank on his knees, clasped his hands and raised his tear-stained face aloft.

"Oh, Lord," he began, "you must know me. I'm Bishop Rogers Bradford."

Benefits of Sun Many; There Are Dangers, Too

Prolonged Exposure May Result in a Serious Burn, so Take Your First Rays Gradually and in Moderate Doses

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health,
New York City

EVEN THOUGH some appear to forget it, most of us know that prolonged exposure to the rays of the sun is dangerous.

I recently visited a friend who was recuperating from a severe sunburn. In the course of conversation he told me that he had fallen asleep while taking a sun bath.

When he awakened he could hardly move. His body seemed to be on fire and he suffered marked agony. He was rushed to a hospital where he received the necessary treatment for the severe burn that he had inflicted upon himself.

My friend was dangerously ill for weeks and at one time little hope was held for his recovery.

Gradual Exposure

Of course, this is an extreme case, but the rays of the sun are strong and penetrating. The skin is easily burned by excessive exposure. The burn is similar to that received from fire or scalding liquids. Extensive skin burns from any cause are dangerous and may result in serious complications. Extensive burns covering a wide area of skin may be fatal.

Everyone enjoys a good sun-bath. It gives a healthy appearance and a feeling of well being. It can only be safely acquired by gradual exposure to the sun.

Redness and tenderness of the skin are nature's signs of warning. Bear in mind that exposure to the sun must be gradual and not increased to the point where the skin has a protective coat of tan. Once the skin has this protection you may safely stay out in the sun for long periods.

Curative Value of Sun's Rays

Though the value of sunlight as a means of combating disease has been known for many centuries, it is only within recent years that its really curative effect has been appreciated. The rays of the sun supply the body with certain substances essential to good health and nutrition. They are of special value in the prevention of certain childhood diseases.

The rays prevent certain vitamin-deficiency diseases, such as rickets. The child who has an abundance of sunshine will never have rickets. This disease was formerly a common ailment of children who received little sunshine and fresh air.

Sun baths are now given to the infant when it is but three or four weeks old. During the winter months when sunlight is scarce, or when weather prevents out-of-doors sunbaths, cod liver oil should be given. This supplies the necessary vitamins developed by the rays of the sun and necessary for sturdy bones and healthy bodies.

The value of sunshine cannot be overestimated. But the dangers of careless exposure to the sun must not be disregarded. Get your share of sunlight but do so carefully and in moderation. Never expose yourself to the sun rays for a long time until you have that protective coat of tan. And above all, do not fall asleep in the sun, as my friend did.

Answers to Health Queries

M. B. Q.—What causes brown spots to appear on the neck? 2: What do you advise for pimples?

A.—These are probably liver spots and self-addressed, stamped envelope for further particulars and reply, your question. Diet and elimination are important in the correction of this disorder.

Clifton screen in "Looking Forward"

new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer-Cosmopolitan production, based on the London stage success "Service."

"Looking Forward" was written by C. L. Anthony, also the author of the play, "Autumn Crocus," which recently completed a successful New York run. The talking-picture version was filmed by Clarence Brown, director of "Flesh and the Devil," "Easy Street" and "Letty Lynton."

President Selected Title

The picture tells a story of the modern business world and the effects of the depression on a great department store. Its title, "Looking Forward," was selected by special permission of President Franklin Roosevelt. The symbolic phrase was used by the President as the title of his recently published and widely acclaimed book.

Barrymore as Benton, faithful old bookkeeper, has a role totally different from that of his sinister Raskin, the part of the humble clerk who finds himself facing a life crisis when he loses his job, resembling somewhat his famous Kringelein of "Grand Hotel." Lewis Stone follows his fine work in "The White Sister" with the role of the merchant prince in the present picture, and the two popular English screen and stage stars, Benita Hume and Elizabeth Allan, have the leading feminine roles.

Dr. J. H. Staley, of Ash Grove, is attending the graduate conference which is held annually at the Pennsylvania State College of Optometry in Philadelphia. Some of the most distinguished educators in optometry in the United States are in attendance.

The discussions cover the new developments for the better care of the human eye. Some of those developments have been perfected in research work in what is perhaps the largest eye clinic in the country at this college, where 16,000 patients were treated in 1932.

B.&P. Women's Song Recital at M.E. Church Girl Graduates Huge Success

The annual dinner given in honor of the girl graduates of Circleville High School by the Business and Professional Women's Club was held Thursday evening in the social rooms of the Presbyterian church. Serving of the dinner by the Ladies' Aid society was under the direction of its president, Mrs. A. J. Lyle.

The candle lighted tables and the attractive favors carried out the class colors of blue and silver. Surrounding the tables were baskets of beautifully arranged flowers. At intervals during the dinner and program the guests were delightfully entertained by musical selections consisting of two vocal solos by Miss Johnda Gottle, accompanied by Miss Mildred Rummel; a piano solo by Miss Emily Zaenglein and two violin solos by Miss Vera Zaenglein with accompaniment by her sister, Emily.

Following the dinner the president, Miss Elma Rains, welcomed the guests and graduates, to which Mrs. Rosemary Jackson responded graciously. The guest speaker of the evening, Edith Dobbins, of Cincinnati, was then introduced by the president. She spoke to the graduates in a delightful manner, stressing the fact that faith, truth and determination are the outstanding qualities to be developed in order to succeed in the business world. Mrs. Dobbins is serving her second year as president of the Cincinnati Business and Professional Women's Club, and is manager of a florist's business as well as a sandblasting business here.

Another guest was Miss Gertrude Gampier of Columbus, state chairman of the Florence Allen Scholarship fund, who spoke briefly.

An appropriate ending to the evening's entertainment was the poem composed by Miss Velma Watson, which she read.

IF I HAD MY WISH

If I had my wish, I should give to you
A life that is lovely, pure and true;
I should fervently ask the Father on high
To protect you from care as the years speed by—
To carve for you a great career
From living marble without Time's fear—
To send you earth's sunshine without the rain
To grant you love's joy without love's pain.

But since this wish, I know, could never come true,
I am making another wish for you:

May you graciously strive to be humble and kind—
To seek your duty with unbiased mind—
May you see the humor in life's little tricks,
Be sane and wholesome amid Fortune's pricks;
May your vision, from power created above
Supply to your work, to your home and friends—love!

Miss Mary Radcliff sang three numbers. She has a clear soprano voice of great flexibility and her songs were well interpreted.

The duet by Mrs. Clark Will and Miss Marion was a most pleasing number, the two soprano voices blending perfectly.

Miss Clara Johnson, Mrs. T. P. Brown and Mrs. S. G. Corne were guests of Mrs. J. Wallace Crist, N. Court-st. Thursday evening, when she entertained the members of her bridge club.

Three tables of cards were in progress with high score prize at the conclusion of play awarded Mrs. Hervey Sweyer.

Mrs. George Marion was hostess, Thursday afternoon, when she pleasantly entertained the members of the Art sewing club and Mrs. Alonzo Marion.

At the conclusion of the enjoyable hours tempting refreshments were served.

The next club meeting will be a picnic, the second Wednesday in August.

Ladies' society meets Thursday. Forty members and guests were present at the monthly meeting of the Ladies' Aid society of Christ Lutheran church at Lick Run, held Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Webb Steinhilber.

The meeting opened with devotional services in charge of Rev. G. L. Troutman followed by the missionary paper on Mexican Missions read by Miss Mabel Kerns.

The program was presented by members of the Ladies' society of the local Lutheran church with Mrs. James Carpenter in charge.

A duet, "No Sir," was sung by Mrs. William Reid and Mrs. Ed Sosenbrenner followed by two quartet selections, "Lorelei" and "Steel Away." The quartet was comprised of Mrs. Elmer Wolf, Mrs. Frank Palm, Miss Mildred Barthelmas and Mrs. Carpenter.

Anna Marie Follmuth gave two readings, "Encouragement" and "Mamma's Pickaninny," which were followed by a piano solo, "Twinkle Twinkle Little Star" by Mrs. William Reid.

A play, "The Suffragette Meeting," concluded the program. It was presented by Mrs. Charles Deihlman, Mrs. Elmer Wolf, Mrs. Frank Palm, Mrs. Cyril Palm, Mrs. Mary Bowser, Mrs. Clarence Wolf and Mrs. Carpenter.

Delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Steinhilber and Mrs. Ed Hulse.

TRIAL BALANCE

A trial balance is the testing of a ledger to discover whether the debits and credits balance by finding whether the sum of the personal credits increased by the difference between the debit and credit sums in the merchandise and impersonal accounts equals the sum of personal debits. The equality would not show that the items were all correctly posted.
